Suffering Politics Power

David Henig, Anna Strhan, Joel Robbins

Suffering Politics Power:

Suffering, Politics, Power Cynthia Halpern, 2002-01-03 Suffering Politics Power argues that human suffering on a global scale constitutes the most urgent and least understood question of contemporary politics and political theory In the modern age the experience of suffering is primarily a political problem constructed out of crucial conflicting perspectives The book draws on a genealogy of suffering through the conflicting perspectives of four major political theorists Martin Luther Thomas Hobbes Jean Jacques Rousseau and Friedrich Nietzsche Although supplying contradictory accounts of the nature of suffering and human response to it these theorists when examined together provide a historical foundation for the political structures of our time and a trajectory for the problematic of suffering which defies all limits This book works to foster a contemporary political response to suffering addressing the techniques of its production and representation and the dilemmas of ascertaining causes and responsibilities

Figures in the Carpet Wilfred M. McClay, 2007-01-02 Figures in the Carpet presents a stellar roster of first rate historians dealing seriously with a perennially important subject The case studies and more theoretical accounts in this book amount to an unusually perceptive assessment of how the person has been viewed in American history

Hannah Arendt and the Limits of Total

Domination Michal Aharony, 2015-03-05 Responding to the increasingly influential role of Hannah Arendt's political philosophy in recent years Hannah Arendt and the Limits of Total Domination: The Holocaust, Plurality and Resistance critically engages with Arendt's understanding of totalitarianism. According to Arendt, the main goal of totalitarianism was total domination, namely the virtual eradication of human legality, morality, individuality and plurality. This attempt, in her view, was most fully realized in the concentration camps, which served as the major laboratories for the regime. While Arendt focused on the perpetrators' logic and drive, Michal Aharony examines the perspectives and experiences of the victims and their ability to resist such an experiment. The first book-length study to juxtapose Arendt's concept of total domination with actual testimonies of Holocaust survivors, this book calls for methodological pluralism and the integration of the voices and narratives of the actors in the construction of political concepts and theoretical systems. To achieve this, Aharony engages with both well-known and non-canonical intellectuals and writers who survived Auschwitz and Buchenwald concentration camps. Additionally, she analyzes the oral testimonies of survivors who are largely unknown, drawing from interviews conducted in Israel and in the U.S. as well as from videotaped interviews from archives around the world. Revealing various manifestations of unarmed resistance in the camps, this study demonstrates the persistence of morality and free agency even under the most extreme and dehumanizing conditions, while cautiously suggesting that absolute domination is never as absolute as it claims or wishes to be. Scholars of political philosophy, political science, history and Holocaust studies will find this an original and compelling book.

Fictional International Relations Sungju Park-Kang, 2014-06-05 This book proposes the idea of fictional International Relations (IR) and engages with feminist IR by contextualising the case of a woman spy in Korea in the Cold War. Fictional imagination and feminist IR encourage one to go beyond conventional or standard ways of thinking; it reshapes taken-for-granted interpretations and assumptions. This takes the view that a dominant narrative of events might be reconstructed as a different kind of story once events are placed within a wider temporal approach. The case of the woman Korean secret agent who reportedly bombed a South Korean plane, Korean Airlines KAL Flight 858, under the instruction from the North Korean leadership to disrupt the Seoul Olympic Games is chosen to serve as an effective example of fictional IR and feminist IR scholarship, which can be investigated through the research puzzles concerning gender, pain and truth. Fictional International Relations has three main objectives. First, it investigates the way in which fiction writing can become a method for dealing with data problems and contingency in IR. Second, the book examines how gender, pain and truth operate or interact in the case of the Korean spy and how this observation can strengthen feminist IR in terms of intersectionality. Finally, the author goes on to explore why this case has been so difficult to study openly and thoroughly. The aim of the book is not to refute the official findings; the point is to unpack complex dynamics surrounding truth, more specifically how the official account has been executed as the truth based on a feminist-informed investigation. This book will be of interest to students of IR theory, critical security studies, Cold War studies, gender studies and Asian studies.

Foucault and Nietzsche Joseph Westfall, Alan Rosenberg, 2018-02-22 Foucault's intellectual indebtedness to Nietzsche is apparent in his writing yet the precise nature, extent and nuances of that debt are seldom explored. Foucault himself seems sometimes to claim that his approach is essentially Nietzschean and sometimes to insist that he amounts to a radical break with Nietzsche. This volume is the first of its kind presenting the relationship between these two thinkers on elements of contemporary culture that they shared interests in including the nature of life in the modern world, philosophy as a way of life and the ways in which we ought to read and write about other philosophers. The contributing authors are leading figures in Foucault and Nietzsche studies and their contributions reflect the diversity of approaches possible in coming to terms with the Foucault-Nietzsche relationship. Specific points of comparison include Foucault and Nietzsche's differing understandings of the Death of God, art and aesthetics, power, writing and authorship, politics and society, the history of ideas, genealogy and archaeology and the evolution of knowledge.

Passions and Subjectivity in Early Modern Culture Freya Sierhuis, 2016-05-13 Bringing together scholars from literature and the history of ideas, Passions and Subjectivity in Early Modern Culture explores new ways of negotiating the boundaries between cognitive and bodily models of emotion and between different versions of the will as active or passive. In the process it juxtaposes the historical formation of such ideas with contemporary philosophical debates. It frames a dialogue between rhetoric and medicine, politics and religion in order to examine the relationship between mind and body and between experience and the senses. Some chapters discuss literature in studies of Shakespeare, Donne and Milton; other essays concentrate on philosophical arguments, both Aristotelian and Galenic models from antiquity and new mechanistic formations in Descartes, Hobbes and Spinoza. A powerful sense of paradox emerges in treatments of the passions in the early modern period, also reflected in new literary and philosophical forms in which inwardness was displayed, analysed and studied: the autobiography, the essay, the soliloquy, genres which rewrite the formation of subjectivity. At the same time the frame of reference moves outwards from the world of interior states to encounter the passions on a public stage, thus reconnecting literary study with the history of political thought. In between the abstract theory of political ideas and the inward selves of literary history lies a field of intersections waiting to be explored. The passions, like human nature itself, are infinitely variable and provoke both literary experimentation and philosophical imagination. Passions and Subjectivity in Early Modern Culture thus makes new connections between embodiment, selfhood and the emotions in order to suggest both new models of the self and new models for interdisciplinary history.

Compliance Will Rollason, Eric Hirsch, 2023-12-08 Exploring compliance from an anthropological perspective, this book offers a varied and international selection of chapters covering taxation, corporate governance, medicine, development, carbon offsetting, irregular migration and the building trade. Compliance emerges as more than the opposite of resistance; instead, it appears as a valuable heuristic approach for understanding collective life as a means by which actors strive to accommodate themselves to others. This perspective transcends conventional distinctions between power and resistance and offers to open up new avenues of anthropological enquiry Where is the Good in the World? David Henig, Anna Strhan, Joel Robbins, 2022-07-08 Bringing together contributions from anthropology sociology religious studies and philosophy along with ethnographic case studies from diverse settings this volume explores how different disciplinary perspectives on the good might engage with and enrich each other The chapters examine how people realize the good in social life exploring how ethics and values relate to forms of suffering power and inequality and in doing so demonstrate how focusing on the good enhances social theory This is the first interdisciplinary engagement with what it means to study the good as a fundamental aspect of social life
