Libraries of the Mind William Marx, 2025-05-20 How we build our invisible libraries Erich Auerbach wrote his classic work Mimesis a history of narrative from Homer to Proust based largely on his memory of past reading Having left his physical library behind when he fled to Istanbul to escape the Nazis he was forced to rely on the invisible library of his mind Each of us has such a library if not as extensive as Auerbach's even if we are unaware of it In this erudite and provocative book William Marx explores our invisible libraries how we build them and how we should expand them Libraries Marx tells us are mental realities and conversely our minds are libraries We never read books apart from other texts We take them from mental shelves filled with a variety of works that help us understand what we are reading And yet the libraries in our mind are not always what they should be The selection on our mental shelves often referred to as canon heritage patrimony or tradition needs to be modified and expanded Our intangible libraries should incorporate what Marx calls the dark matter of literature the works that have been lost that exist only in fragments that have been repurposed by their authors or were never written in the first place Marx suggests methods for recovering this missing literature but he also warns us that adding new titles to our libraries is not enough We must also adopt a new attitude one that honors the diversity and otherness of literary works We must shed our preconceptions and build within ourselves a mental world library The Mental Power Library MENTAL POWER LIBRARY., 1905 George Herbert Locke and the Transformation of Toronto Public Library, 1908-1937 Lorne D. Bruce, 2020-12-31 George H Locke chief librarian of the Toronto Public Library between 1908 and 1937 was Canada's foremost library administrator in the first part of the twentieth century During this period free public libraries and librarianship in Ontario expanded rapidly due to the philanthropy of Andrew Carnegie improvements in library education and the influence of American library services Locke was closely associated with all these trends however his outlook was primarily guided by his Methodist upbringing the Anglo Canadian academic tradition of British Idealism and his association with John Dewey's contribution to American progressive education These religious and intellectual strands encouraged personal action to improve social conditions As director of Toronto's libraries he brought his ambitious ideas to bear in many ways the building of neighbourhood branches library service for children formal education for librarians suitable reading for immigrants and young adults and the idea of the public library as a municipal partner in the self education of adult Canadians By 1930 Toronto's public library system was recognized as one of the best in North America and George Locke's reputation as a visionary leader had vaulted him to the Presidency of the American Library Association Although he had created a large organization that might have succumbed to bureaucratic practices and formalized centralization Locke resisted this development He remained faithful to his moral intellectual and humanistic values acquired during his early schooling and university career For Locke libraries and librarians were less about organization and formal duties Both
