Mediterranean and played a multifaceted role in the making of early Christianity Scholarship in early Christianity has for centuries viewed Roman emperors slaves and freedmen as responsible for ushering Christianity onto the world stage traditionally using Paul's allusion to the saints from Caesar's household in Philippians 4:22 as a core literary lens Merging textual and material evidence with diaspora and memory studies Flexsenhar expands on this narrative to explore new and more nuanced representations of this group showing how the long accepted stories of Christian slaves and freedpersons in Caesar's household should not be taken at face value but should instead be understood within the context of Christian myth and meaning making Flexsenhar analyzes textual and material evidence from the first to the sixth century spanning Roman Asia the Aegean rim Gaul and the coast of North Africa as well as the imperial capital itself As a result this book shows how stories of the emperor's slaves were integral to key developments in the spread of Christianity generating origin myths in Rome and establishing a shared history and geography there differentiating and negotiating assimilation with other groups and expressing commemorative language ritual acts and a material culture With its thoughtful critical readings of literary and material sources and its fresh analysis of the lived experiences of imperial slaves and freedpersons Christians in Caesar's Household is indispensable reading for scholars of early Christianity the origins of religion and the Roman Empire
