Sunrise A Song Of Two Humans:

Sunrise Lucy Fischer, 2020-10-01 Sunrise A Song of Two Humans 1927 is one of the most historically pivotal of all films. The first American film of the celebrated German director F. W. Murnau, Sunrise tells the story of a love triangle between characters named only as The Man, The Wife, and The Woman from the City. Lucy Fischer's compelling study of the film shows how it mediates between German expressionism and American melodrama, the avantgarde and popular film, silent cinema and talkies. A lavish and sumptuous production famous for its vast specially constructed sets and one of the first feature films with a synchronized musical score and sound effects soundtrack, Sunrise was one of early Hollywood's most ambitious undertakings. In her foreword to this new edition, Lucy Fischer considers the film as an abiding classic of world cinema.

Sunrise Lucy Fischer, 1998-07 The first film made in America by the celebrated German director F. W. Pierre, 2016-08-15 In film history, director/cinematographer collaborations were on a labor spectrum with the model of the contracted camera operator in the silent era and that of the cinematographer in the sound era. But in the Weimar era, German filmmaking (1919-33), a short period of intense artistic activity and political and economic instability, these models existed side by side due to the emergence of camera operators as independent visual artists and collaborators with directors. Berlin in the 1920s was the chief site of the interdisciplinary avantgarde of the Modernist movement in the visual, literary, architectural, design, typographical, sartorial, and performance arts in Europe. The Weimar Revolution that arose in the aftermath of the November 1918 Armistice and that established the Weimar Republic informed and agitated all of the art movements such as Expressionism, Dada, the Bauhaus, Minimalism, Objectivism, Verism, and Neue Sachlichkeit (New Objectivity). Among the avantgarde forms of these new stylistically and culturally negotiated arts, the cinema was foremost and since its inception had been a radical experimental practice in new visual technologies that proved instrumental in changing how human beings perceived movement, structure, perspective, light, exposure, temporal duration, continuity, spatial orientation, human postural, facial, vocal, and gestural displays, and their own spectatorship, as well as conventions of storytelling like narrative, setting, theme, character, and structure. Whereas most of the arts mobilized into schools, movements, institutions, and other structures, cinema as a collaborative art tended to organize around its ensembles of practitioners. Historically, the silent film era (1895-1927) is associated with auteurs, the precursors of François Truffaut and other filmmakers in the 1960s, actuality filmmakers and pioneers like R. W. Paul and Fred and Joe Evans in England, Auguste and Louis Lumière and Georges Méliès in France, and Charles Chaplin and Buster Keaton in America, who by managing all the compositional, executional, and editorial facets of film production—scripting, directing, acting, photographing, set, costume, and lighting design, editing, and marketing—imposed their personal vision or authorship on the film. The dichotomy of the auteur and the production ensemble established a production hierarchy in most filmmaking In formative German silent film however this hierarchy was less rank or class driven because collaborative partnerships took precedence over single authorship Whereas in silent film production in most countries the terms filmmaker and director were synonymous in German silent film the plural term filmemacherin connoted both directors and cinematographers along with the rest of the filmmaking crew Thus German silent filmmakers principle contribution to the new medium and art of film was less the representational iconographies of Expressionist New Objective and Naturalist styles than the executorial practice of co authorship and co production in distinctive cinematographer director partnerships such as those of cinematographer Theodor Sparkuhl and director Ernst Lubitsch Fritz Arno Wagner with F W Murnau Fritz Lang and G W Pabst Rudolf Mat with Carl Theodor Dreyer Guido Seeber with Lang and Pabst and Carl Hoffmann with Lang and Murnau

George Larkin,2018-12-07 Post Production and the Invisible Revolution of Filmmaking studies the discourses surrounding post production as well as the aesthetic effects of its introduction during the 1920s and 1930s by exploring the philosophies and issues faced by practitioners during this transitional transformative period The introduction of post production during the transition from silent cinema to the synchronized sound era in the 1920s American studio system resulted in what has been a previously unheralded and invisible revolution in filmmaking Thereafter a film no longer arose from a live and variable combination of audio and visual in the theater as occurred during the silent film era where each exhibition was a singular event The new system of post production effectively shifted control of a film s final form from the theater to the editing room With this new process filmmakers could obtain and manipulate an array of audio elements and manufacture a permanent soundtrack This transition made possible a product that could be easily mass produced serving both to transform and homogenize film presentation fundamentally creating a new art form With detailed research and analysis and nearly 50 illustrations this book is the ideal resource for students and researchers of film history and post production What Nails It
