Suicide In Alcoholism:

Suicide in Alcoholism George Earl Murphy, 1992 Alcoholics commit about 25% of the more than 30 000 suicides per year in the U S This unique revealing study discusses 50 actual cases of alcoholics who took their lives The first part of the book covers the background of the study the method of investigation and the life histories This leads to the identification of seven risk factors for suicide in alcoholics none of them acute Comparing those findings to the same factors in groups of living alcoholics shows that the risk factors are all more frequently present in the suicides than the living alcoholics Moreover they act in a cumulative fashion the greater the number of factors present the greater the risk of suicide The case histories describe how both alcoholism and its suicidal outcome span the ranges of age sex race and socioeconomic characteristics This accessible work offers a broad understanding of the determinants and predictors of suicide in alcoholics and indicates practical measures to prevent these suicides Suicide, Homicide, and Alcoholism Among American Indians National Institute of Mental Health (U.S.), 1973 Suicide, Homicide, and Alcoholism Among American Indians Calvin J. shame guilt rage loneliness hopelessness and so forth stem from frustrated or thwarted psychological needs These psychological needs include the need for achievement for affiliation for autonomy for counteraction for exhibition for nurturance for order and for understanding Shneidman 2 who is considered the father of suicidology has proposed the following definition of suicide Currently in the Western world suicide is a conscious act of self induced annihilation best understood as a multidimensional malaise in a needful individual who defines an issue for which the suicide is perceived as the best solution Shneidman has also suggested that that suicide is best understood not so much as a movement toward death as it is a movement away from something and that something is always the same intolerable emotion unendurable pain or unacceptable anguish Strategies involving restriction of access to common methods of suicide have proved to be effective in reducing suicide rates however there is a need to adopt multi sectoral approaches involving other levels of intervention and activities such as crisis centers There is compelling evidence indicating that adequate prevention and treatment of depression alcohol and substance abuse can reduce suicide rates School based interventions involving crisis management self esteem enhancement and the development of coping skills and healthy decision making have been demonstrated to reduce the risk of suicide among the youth Worldwide the prevention of suicide has not been adequately addressed due to basically a lack of awareness of suicide as a major problem and the taboo in many societies to discuss openly about it In fact only a few countries have included prevention of suicide among their priorities Reliability of suicide certification and reporting is an issue in great need of improvement It is clear that suicide prevention requires intervention also from outside the health sector and calls for an innovative comprehensive multi sectoral approach including both health and non health sectors e g education labour police justice religion law politics the media

Alcoholism and Clinical Psychiatry Joel Solomon, 2012-12-06 It is well known that alcoholism continues to be one of this country's major public health problems This issue is carefully documented by Dr Gerald Klerman Chief of ADAMHA in the second chapter of this volume In spite of the major role that alcohol plays in the health care issues of internal medicine neurology and psychiatry the subject continues to fall between the cracks of the various disciplines For this reason it has become almost a discipline of its own yet there are no academic departments of alcoholism because academic departments are unidisciplinary and alcoholism is clearly a multidisciplinary field within medicine In spite of the many disciplines involved in the study and treatment of alcoholism psychiatry continues to have a special albeit often neglected relationship to alcoholism and it is the articulation of that relationship which prompted the Department of Psychiatry at the Downstate Medical Center to organize the conference upon which many chapters in this volume are based Particular emphasis in selecting the topics to be covered was placed on the interface between alcoholism and clinical psychiatry including affective disorders schizophrenia suicide adolescence the special problems of women and psychotherapy to mention only some of them
