Change Stephen R. Barley, 2020-10-27 In recent years a growing number of commentators have declared that we are at the beginning of a technical revolution that will see profound changes in the way we live and work Yet what constitutes a technological revolution and what logic supports how successive technological revolutions have unfolded in Western societies How do technologies change organizations and what are the implications of intelligent technologies for work and employment Here Stephen R Barley reflects on over three decades of research to explore both the history of technological change and the approaches used to investigate how technologies are shaping our work and organizations He begins by placing current developments in artificial intelligence into the historical context of previous technological revolutions drawing on William Faunce s argument that the history of technology is one of progressive automation of the four components of any production system energy transformation transfer and control technologies He then considers how technologies change work and when those changes will and will not result in organizational change In doing so he lays out a role based theory of how technologies produce changes in organizations He then tackles the issue alongside Matt Beane of how to conceptualize a more thorough approach to assessing how intelligent technologies such as artificial intelligence can shape work and employment They identify the main reasons why the current state of research on intelligent technologies in the workplace is inadequate and provide pointers on how empirical studies in this area may and must be improved He concludes with a discussion with his long time colleague Diane Bailey about the fears that arise when one sets out to study technical work and technical workers and the methods that they and future ethnographers can use for controlling those fears

Many Norths Lola Sheppard,Mason White,2021-07-13 There are many norths in this North Louis Edmond Hamelin 1975 Many Norths Spatial Practice in a Polar Territory charts the unique spatial realities of Canada s Arctic region an immense territory populated with small dispersed communities The region has undergone dramatic transformations in the name of sovereignty aboriginal affairs management resources and trade among others For most of the Arctic s modern history architecture infrastructure and settlements have been the tools of colonialism Today tradition and modernity are intertwined Northerners have demonstrated remarkable adaptation and resilience as powerful climatic social and economic pressures collide This unprecedented book documents through the themes of urbanism architecture mobility monitoring and resources the multiplicity of norths that appear and the spatial practices employed to negotiate it Using innovative drawings maps timelines as well as essays and interviews Many Norths reveals a distinct northern vernacular

Nomadic and Indigenous Spaces Judith Miggelbrink,Joachim Otto Habeck,Nuccio Mazzullo,Peter Koch,2016-05-06 This volume is devoted to aspects of space that have thus far been largely unexplored How space is perceived and cognised has been discussed from different stances but there are few analyses of nomadic approaches to spatiality Nor is there a sufficient number of studies on indigenous interpretations of space despite the importance of territory and place in definitions of indigeneity At the intersection of geography and anthropology the authors of this volume combine general reflections on spatiality with case studies from the Circumpolar North and other nomadic settings Spatial perceptions and practices have been profoundly transformed by new technologies as well as by new modes of social and political interaction How do these changes play out in the everyday lives identifications and political projects of nomadic and indigenous people This question has been broached from two seemingly divergent stances spatial cognition on the one hand and production of space on the other Bringing these two approaches together this volume re aligns the different strings of scholarship on spatiality making them applicable and relevant for indigenous and nomadic conceptualizations of space place and territory

Recreational Land Use Geoffrey Wall,John S. Marsh,1982-01-01 Grazing Communities Letizia Bindi,2022-05-13 Pastoralism is a diffused and ancient form of human subsistence and probably one of the most studied by anthropologists at the crossroads between continuities and transformations The present critical discourse on sustainable and responsible development implies a change of practices a huge socio economic transformation and the return of new shepherds and herders in different European regions Transhumance and extensive breeding are revitalized as a potential resource for inner and rural areas of Europe against depopulation and as an efficient form of farming deeply influencing landscape and functioning as a perfect eco system service This book is an occasion to reconsider grazing communities frictions in the new global heritage scenario

Reindeer Management in Northernmost Europe Bruce C. Forbes, Manfred Bölter, Ludger Müller-Wille, Janne Hukkinen, Felix Müller, Nicolas Gunsley, Yulian Konstantinov, 2006-03-09 The findings presented in this volume represent a concerted effort to develop a more inclusive form of reindeer management for northernmost Europe Our guiding principle has been to foster a new paradigm of participatory research We wish to move beyond the historical reliance on western approaches to basic and applied science These have been concerned primarily with interactions between herded animals and the various components of their biophysical environment e g plants insects predators climate and others In our view sociocultural and economic drivers along with herders experience based knowledge gain equal currency in the effort to understand how management may mitigate against the negative aspects of the challenges modern herding faces while also exploring concepts of sustainability from different perspectives see also Jernsletten and Klov 2002 Kankaanpää et al 2002 Ulvevædet and Klov 2004 This broadening of the pool of disciplines and local national and international stakeholders in policy relevant research invariably complicates virtually all aspects of the research process Multidisciplinary or in our sense transdisciplinary approaches also require extraordinary effort from all participants if they are to succeed As such those approaches should not be undertaken lightly nor without personnel who possess appropriate experience in cooperating with those of different disciplines and preferably also with relevant practitioners and public social and administrative institutions In such settings the potential for misunderstandings is quite high

The Texture of Industry Robert B. Gordon, Patrick M. Malone, 1997-02-06 While historians have given ample attention to stories of entrepreneurship invention and labor conflict they have told us little about actual work places and how people worked Workers seldom wrote about their daily employment However they did leave behind their tools products shops and factories as well as the surrounding industrial landscapes and communities In this book Gordon and Malone look at the industrialization of North America from the perspective of the industrial archaeologist Using material evidence from such varied sites as Indian steatite quarries automobile plants and coal mines they examine manufacturing technology transportation systems and the effects of industrialization on the land Their research greatly expands our understanding of industry and focuses attention on the contributions of anonymous artisans whose skills shaped our industrial heritage

Wishart, Jan Peter Laurens Looovers, 2018-06-13 Dogs in the North offers an interdisciplinary in depth consideration of the multiple roles that dogs have played in the North Spanning the deep history of humans and dogs in the North the volume examines a variety of contexts in
