The Contemporary Law Of Armed Conflict Melland Schill Studies In International Law Series:

The Contemporary Law of Armed Conflict Leslie C. Green, 1993 The contemporary law of armed conflict: Third edition Leslie C. Green, 2018-07-30 Green's The contemporary law of armed conflict has been acclaimed as one of the most significant works on the law of armed conflict to appear in recent years. The first edition was adopted as a basic text by military institutions and educational establishments throughout the world and is among the most comprehensive and readable works on the subject. This new edition brings the work up to date, examining the significance of the World Court's Opinion on the legality of the nuclear weapon. It also considers the importance of such matters as the laser weapon, agreement on the mines treaty and the jurisprudence of the two war crimes tribunals that for the former Yugoslavia as well as for Rwanda, and assesses the role of the proposed International Criminal Court as it may affect the law of armed conflict. The book applies a practical as well as a theoretical approach and draws on an extensive range of national and international practice. It is thus an indispensable reference for the armed forces and government defence organizations as well as academics and students interested in the modern law of war.

The Concept of Military Objectives in International Law and Targeting Practice Agnieszka Jachec-Neale, 2014-10-24 The concept that certain objects and persons may be legitimately attacked during armed conflicts has been well recognised and developed through the history of warfare. This book explores the relationship between international law and targeting practice in determining whether an object is a lawful military target. By examining both the interpretation and its post-ratification application, this book provides a comprehensive analysis of the definition of military objective adopted in 1977 Additional Protocol I to the four 1949 Geneva Conventions and its use in practice. Tackling topical issues such as the targeting of TV and radio stations or cyber targets, Agnieszka Jachec-Neale analyses the concept of military objective within the context of both modern military doctrine and the major coalition operations which have been undertaken since it was formally defined. This monograph will be of great interest to students and scholars of international law and the law of armed conflict as well as security studies and international relations.

Violence against women's health in international law Sara De Vido, 2020-06-12 This electronic version has been made available under a Creative Commons BY-NC-ND open access license. Violence against women is characterised by its universality, the multiplicity of its forms and the intersectionality of diverse kinds of discrimination against women. Great emphasis in legal analysis has been placed on sex-based discrimination; however, in investigations of violence, one aspect has been overlooked: violence may severely affect women's health and access to reproductive health, and State health policies might be a cause of violence against women. Exploring the relationship between violence against women and women's rights to health and reproductive health, Sara De Vido theorises the new concept of violence against women's health in international law using the Hippocratic paradigm, enriching human rights-based approaches to women's autonomy and reflecting on the pervasiveness of patterns of discrimination. At the core of the book are two dimensions of violence: horizontal inter-personal and vertical state policies Investigating these dimensions through decisions made by domestic regional and international judicial or quasi judicial bodies De Vido reconceptualises States obligations and eventually asks whether international law itself is the ultimate cause of violence against women s health Law on the battlefield A. Yearbook of International Humanitarian Law - 2001 Avril McDonald, John Dugard, William Fenrick, Hans-Peter Gasser, Christopher Greenwood, Hortensia Gutierrez Posse, 2011-01-07 The defining moments of 2001 the terrorist attacks of September 11 against the United States of America marked a turning point in international law and relations By their scale and audaciousness overnight they helped to propel the issue of international terrorism to the top of the international security agenda and particularly that of the USA with consequences for many branches of international law including the jus ad bellum the jus in bello international law relating to terrorism international human rights law and international criminal law that were just beginning to be felt as the year closed The September 11 attacks were immediately characterised by the United States as an act of war an armed attack on such a scale as to constitute an armed conflict Its immediate response was to declare a so called Global War on Terrorism Avowedly acting in self defense on 7 October the US launched armed attacks against Afghanistan not because Afghanistan was considered to be legally responsible for the September 11 attacks but for harbouring and refusing to surrender members of Al Qaeda including its leader Osama Bin Laden and refusing to dismantle terrorist training camps Although the main target of the attacks was Al Qaeda the armed conflict that ensued was an international armed conflict between the US and its allies and the state of Afghanistan notwithstanding that the US never recognised the Taliban as the government of Afghanistan

The Human Rights of Aliens in Contemporary International Law Richard B. Lillich, 1984 Parts of this volume were originally delivered as the Melland Schill lectures at the University of Manchester Nov 19 20 1981 Nuclear Weapons under International Law Gro Nystuen, Stuart Casey-Maslen, Annie Golden Bersagel, 2014-08-28 Nuclear Weapons under International Law is a comprehensive treatment of nuclear weapons under key international law regimes. It critically reviews international law governing nuclear weapons with regard to the inter-state use of force, international humanitarian law, human rights law, disarmament law, and environmental law, and discusses where relevant the International Court of Justice's 1996 Advisory Opinion. Unique in its approach, it draws upon contributions from expert legal scholars and international law practitioners who have worked with conventional and non-conventional arms control and disarmament issues. As a result, this book embraces academic consideration of legal questions within the context of broader political debates about the status of nuclear weapons under international law. Detention in Non-international Armed Conflict Lawrence Hill-Cawthorne, 2016

International law has long differentiated between international and non-international armed conflicts, traditionally regulating the former far more comprehensively than the latter. This is particularly stark in the case of detention, where the law of non-international armed conflict contains no rules on who may be detained, what processes must be provided to review their detention, and when they must be released. Given that non-international armed conflicts are now the most common form of conflict, this is especially worrying, and the consequences of this have been seen in the detention practices of states such as the US and UK in Iraq and Afghanistan. This book provides a comprehensive examination of the procedural rules that apply to detention in non-international armed conflict, with the focus on preventive security detention or internment. All relevant areas of international law, most notably international humanitarian law and international human rights law, are analysed in detail, and the interaction between them explored. The book gives an original account of the relationship between the relevant rules of IHL and IHRL, which is firmly grounded in general international law scholarship, treating the issue as a matter of treaty interpretation. With that in mind, and with reference to State practice in specific non-international armed conflicts, including those in Sri Lanka, Colombia, Nepal, Afghanistan, and Iraq, it is demonstrated that the customary and treaty obligations of States under human rights law continue, absent derogation, to apply to detention in non-international armed conflicts. The practical operation of those rules is then explored in detail. The volume ends with a set of concrete proposals for developing the law in this area in a manner that builds upon rather than replaces the existing obligations of States and non-State armed groups. Military Interventions in Civil Wars Kamil C. Klosek, 2021-09-27

This book examines the motivations of military interventions in civil wars, with a focus on the role of foreign direct investment (FDI) and the arms trade. The book assumes a state-centric view of international relations, whereby states remain the dominant actors on the world stage. It breaks away from the conventional wisdom that military interventions for economic interests are a product of domestic corporate lobbying, and instead argues that states intervene to protect but not advance existing corporate investments for national strategic interests. The work introduces new concepts of military interventions: proxy interventions and indirect interventions, which are determined by arms trade relationships between the permanent members of the United Nations Security Council (UNSC) and recipient countries, and utilizes insights from principal agent theory, whereby the permanent members of the UNSC delegate military interventions in civil wars to other countries The book concludes by examining the transformative effect of FDI on the willingness of a state to intervene militarily in a civil war focusing on the case of China in Sub Saharan Africa Provided that the current positive trends in FDI and arms trade persist we are likely to see more and not fewer military interventions in the future This book will be of much interest to students of civil wars military interventions security studies and International Relations Autonomous Weapons Systems Nehal Bhuta,Susanne Beck,Robin Geiß,Hin-Yan Liu,Claus Kreß,2016-08-19 The intense and polemical debate over the legality and morality of weapons systems to which human cognitive functions are delegated up to and including the capacity to select targets and release weapons without further human intervention addresses a phenomena which does not yet exist but which is widely claimed to be emergent This groundbreaking collection combines contributions from roboticists legal scholars philosophers and sociologists of science in order to recast the debate in a manner that clarifies key areas and articulates questions for future research The contributors develop insights with direct policy relevance including who bears responsibility for autonomous weapons systems whether they would violate fundamental ethical and legal norms and how to regulate their development It is essential reading for those concerned about this emerging phenomenon and its consequences for the future of humanity Human Rights in the Israeli-occupied Territories, 1967-1982 Esther Rosalind Cohen,1985 Social cultural civil and political measures Part VI
