Government and Rural Development in East Africa L. Cliffe, J.S. Coleman, M.R. Doornbos, 2012-12-06 The gestation period of this collection has been lengthy even by academic standards Some of our long suffering contributors prepared their original drafts for a workshop held in Nairobi in 1967 and although they have all updated their contributions they are still essentially reporting on research conducted in the late 1960s However we feel that their various findings and analyses of the issues they respectively treat have a continuing validity in our comprehension of the problem of rural development Other contributions reporting on more recent work have been incorporated at different times since most of them not commissioned especially for this symposium but all adding something to our understanding of the problem The slow accumulation of material which makes up this final collection parallels an evolution in our own collective thinking if indeed not that of most students of development over the past decade The progression has not been towards final clarification of the complex and changing East African realities nor towards formulation of an accepted model for their analysis rather it has been marked by the questioning of the initial somewhat simplistic assumptions with which some of us started out and a continuing debate and widening polarization of views about the significance of that process of government penetration of the rural areas which is our focus about the positive or negative value of development policies in East Africa and indeed about the appropriate theoretical approaches to the study of development in general International Educational, Cultural and Related Activities for African Countries South of the Sahara United States. Higher Education and Capacity Building in Africa Hanne Kirstine Adriansen, Lene Møller Madsen, Stig Jensen, 2015-11-06 Higher education has recently been recognized as a key driver for societal growth in the Global South and capacity building of African universities is now widely included in donor policies The question is how do capacity building projects affect African universities researchers and students Universities and their scientific knowledges are often seen to have universal qualities therefore capacity building may appear straight forward Higher Education and Capacity Building in Africa contests such universalistic notions Inspired by ideas about the geography of scientific knowledge it explores what role specific places and relationships have in knowledge production and analyses how cultural experiences are included and excluded in teaching and research Thus the different chapters show how what constitutes legitimate scientific knowledge is negotiated and contested In doing so the chapters draw on discussions about the hegemony of Western thought in education and knowledge production The authors own experiences with higher education capacity building and knowledge production are discussed and used to contribute to the reflexive turn and rise of auto ethnography This book is a valuable resource for researchers and postgraduate students in education development studies African studies and human geography as well as anthropology and history

Digital Development in East Africa Warigia M. Bowman,2023-09-22 This book uses comparative case study methodology and extensive field work to examine and compare outcomes of four East African nations Kenya Tanzania Uganda and Rwanda that implemented formal Information and Communications Technology policies in the 1990s Based on extensive fieldwork the book assesses the emergence of a new policy and technological arena from the turn of the millennium to the present In addition to tracing the implementation and reception of these policies Bowman considers to what extent the politics of infrastructure in four connected but distinct African nations have resulted in global participation and equitable distribution and access of infrastructure to all citizens as well as the impact a recent history of war or peace have on the technological outcomes in these communities The book provides us with invaluable new data on how policy and politics function in emerging democracies and illuminates long overlooked opportunities and conditions necessary for the distribution of new and potentially beneficial technologies in other developing countries Research in Education ,1972 My Footprints on the Sands of Time Bethwell A. Ogot,2003 While Allan Ogot s circuits of influence have been very wide and while he has participated in conferences and forums around the world he has never yielded his intellectual and personal anchorage in Kenya though he has had numerous opportunities to accept distinguished chairs overseas Extraordinarily Allan Ogot has sustained his incredible level of service and scholarship through shifting and challenging conditions within Kenya and within Africa navigating changing economic and political circumstances His steady hand and persistent commitment to the highest ideals of scholarly engagement and community provide remarkable model for all who are dedicating themselves and will dedicate themselves to Africanist scholarship This autobiography provides a commentary on the history of Kenya as seen through Allan Ogot s life experiences Practices of Citizenship in East Africa Katariina Holma,Tiina Kontinen,2019-11-04 Practices of Citizenship in East Africa uses insights from philosophical pragmatism to explore how to strengthen citizenship within developing countries Using a bottom up approach the book investigates the various everyday practices in which citizenship habits are formed and reformulated In particular the book reflects on the challenges of implementing the ideals of transformative and critical learning in the attempts to promote active citizenship Drawing on extensive empirical research from rural Uganda and Tanzania and bringing forward the voices of African researchers and academics the book highlights the importance of context in defining how habits and practices of citizenship are constructed and understood within communities The book demonstrates how conceptualizations derived from philosophical pragmatism facilitate identification of the dynamics of incremental change in citizenship It also provides a definition of learning as reformulation of habits which helps to understand the difficulties in promoting change This book will be of interest to scholars within the fields of development governance and educational philosophy Practitioners and policy makers working on inclusive citizenship and interventions to strengthen civil society will also find the concepts explored in this book useful to their work The Open Access version of this book available at <https://www.taylorfrancis.com/books/e/9780429279171> has been made available under a Creative Commons Attribution Non Commercial No Derivatives 4.0 license
