The book will be an interesting resource for students and teachers of English as well as for professionals who wish to learn more about specific English. Writing Business

Francesca Bargiela-Chiappini, Catherine Ross Nickerson, 2014-06-11. Writing Business Genres Media and Discourses offers an analysis of the genres and functions of written discourse in the business context involving a variety of modes of communication. The evolution of new forms of writing is a key focus of this collection and is only partly attributable to the ever-increasing application of technology at work. Alongside machine-mediated texts such as electronic mail and computer-generated correspondence, the contextualised analyses of both traditional genres such as facsimiles and direct mailing and of lesser studied texts such as invitations for bids, contracts, business magazines and ceremonial speeches reveal a rich complexity in the forms of communication evolved by organisations and the individuals who work within them in response to the demands of the social, organisational and cultural contexts in which they operate. This rich textual variation is matched by a discussion of a range of methodological approaches to the development of business writing skills including rhetorical analysis, organisational communication analysis, social constructionism, genre analysis and survey and experimental methods. Using authentic data and benefiting from a fresh interdisciplinary approach, the volume will be of interest to students and researchers of business communication. Language for Specific Purposes LSP English for Specific Purposes ESP and Sociolinguistics Technical Writing for Readers and Writers Brenda R. Written by teachers and successful entrepreneurs, this textbook includes guidance, instruction and practical lessons for the prospective entrepreneur. Writing Like An Engineer Dorothy A. Winsor, 2013-11-05. Comprised of a study spanning over five years, this text looks at four engineering co-op students as they write at work. Since the contributors have a foot in both worlds, work and school, the book should appeal to people who are interested in how students learn to write as well as people who are interested in what writing at work is like. Primarily concerned with whether engineers see their writing as rhetorical or persuasive, the study attempts to describe the students' changing understanding of what it is they do when they write. Two features of engineering practice that have particular impact on the extent to which engineers recognize persuasion are identified: a reverence for data and the hierarchical structure of the organizations in which engineering is most commonly done. Both of these features discourage an open recognition of persuasion. Finally, the study shows that the four co-op students learned most of what they knew about writing at work by engaging in situated practice in the workplace rather than by attending formal classes The Map and the Landscape Philip Shaw, 2006 This volume explores the complex relations between norms and exemplars of genres from business and technical communication Contributors compare a variety of types of norm with textual practices in a variety of ways The genres examined are typical of the range of audiences and media of workplace and business communication product withdrawal notices press releases job ads oral presentations sales letters and tenders chairman's reports and technical reports They are compared with norms set by teachers by unimaginative practice by more or less self appointed experts or by practitioners who may not share the national or professional culture of their colleagues However accurate these may be they never do justice to the complexity of reality The contributors to this volume use a wide variety of methods in their attempt to capture this reality Many analyse texts but all combine this procedure with at least one other approach and often more questionnaires experiments assessing the effect of manipulated texts analysis of practitioner comments and use of natural sources of practitioner judgements like awards for good practice

Genre In The New Rhetoric Aviva Freedman, Peter Medway, 2003-09-02 Since The Mid 1980s The Notion Of Genre Has Been Dramatically Redefined This redefinition has prompted theorists and scholars alike to analyze the shaping power of language and culture and the interplay between the individual and the social Recent work in genre studies has drawn upon ideas and developments from a wide range of intellectual disciplines including 20th century rhetoric literary theory sociology and philosophy of science critical discourse analysis education and cultural studies In this text leading theorists reflect and capitalize on the growing interest in genre studies across these allied fields and examine the powerful implications this reconception of genre has on both research and teaching English as a Lingua Franca in Cross-cultural Immigration

Domains Maria Grazia Guido, 2008 This book explores the cognitive and communicative processes involved in the use of English as a Lingua Franca ELF within cross cultural specialized contexts where non native speakers of English i.e. Western experts and non Western migrants interact The book argues that the main communicative difficulties in such contexts are due precisely to the use of ELF since it develops from the non native speakers transfer of their native language structures and socio cultural schemata into the English they speak Transfer in fact allows non native speakers to appropriate or authenticate those English semantic syntactic pragmatic and specialized discourse structures that are linguistically and conceptually unavailable to them It follows that there are as many ELF varieties as there are communities of non native speakers authenticating English The research questions justifying the ethnographic case studies detailed in this book are What kind of cognitive frames and communicative strategies do Western experts activate in order to convey their culturally marked knowledge of specialized discourse by using their ELF varieties to non Westerners with different linguistic and socio cultural backgrounds What kind of power asymmetries can be identified when non Westerners try to communicate their own knowledge by using their respective ELF varieties Is it possible to ultimately develop a mode of ELF specialized communication that can be shared by both Western experts and non Western migrants
