The Heritage of Traditional Agriculture Among the Western Austronesians James J. Fox, 1992 Australian National Bibliography: 1992 National Library of Australia, 1988 Transforming the Indonesian Uplands Tania Li, 2005-06-27 Drawing upon current theoretical debates in social anthropology development studies and political ecology and presenting original research from across the Archipelago this book addresses the changing histories and identities of upland people as they relate in new ways to the natural resource base to markets and to the state It is an engaged study which fills important analytical gaps and addresses real world concerns exploring the uplands as components of national and global systems of meaning power and production It offers a significant re assessment of concepts processes histories relationships and discourses many of which are not unique to either the uplands or Indonesia making the book essential and compelling reading for both scholars and practitioners Development and Environmental Politics Unmasked Christopher Shepherd, 2013-07-24 Focusing on rural development and environmental management this book brings together the detailed history of development in East Timor under two colonial regimes and under the contemporary conditions of national independence It addresses two comparative areas of development across the three political regimes and across four case studies of projects delivered by various national or international development agencies in independent East Timor Employing an original classificatory framework for kinds of approaches to development coercive orders mandated orders negotiated orders the book covers the plantation centred development of Portuguese Timor as a European colony and the integration oriented development of Timor Timur as Indonesia's 27th province It examines the neoliberal democratic development of East Timor or Timor Leste in the current context of state and nation building before drawing on case studies to investigate how development proceeds as a negotiation between authoritative state non state and international actors and local people who need to adapt development and conservation projects to suit their lived realities By using the history of East Timor to explore how particular modes of operationalising development interventions are intimately intertwined with the broader political system this book makes a valuable contribution to the fields of Development Studies Anthropology Science and Technology Studies and Southeast Asian Studies The Poetic Power of Place James J. Fox, 2006-09-01 This collection of papers is the fourth in a series of volumes on the work of the Comparative Austronesian Project Each paper describes a specific Austronesian locality and offers an ethnographic account of the way in which social knowledge is vested maintained and transformed in a particular landscape The intention of the volume is to consider common patterns in the representation of place among Austronesian speaking populations Dipterocarp Forest Ecosystems Andreas Schulte, Dieter Hans-Friedrich Sch[ne], 1996 The Dipterocarp forests of South East Asia constitute a dominant component of the world's tropical forests As such they are intertwined with a Pandora's box of problems that have plagued the world for decades Over and underdevelopment poverty hunger population growth exploitation of natural resources environmental degradation loss of biodiversity the debt crisis and of late climate change The world community has responded to the crucial role of these forests and the dangers facing them with funds and a myriad of programmers projects institutions conferences and networks Apparently neither a lack of knowledge nor finance constrains the dissipation of sustainable management practices the fate of the world s Dipterocarp forests will certainly depend on the involvement of scientists from many nations and disciplines but will perhaps ultimately rest with local policymakers forest administrators and line foresters Unfortunately these two groups rarely share realms readings or reasoning practical foresters invariably very involved with the challenges of day to day forest management in remote isolated environments may long remain oblivious to scientific developments Traditionally though they do find solutions to problems gain deep insights into forest responses and practical constraints and sometimes even report in semi obscure publications which rarely reach the scientific circuit The editors of the book both experienced forest and soil scientists and practical forest managers have attempted to bridge the gap between the realms of forest science and practice in Dipterocarp ecology management and utilization

Forest, Resources, and People in Bulungan: Elements for a History of Settlement, Trade, and Social Dynamics in Borneo, 1880-2000 Bernard Sellato, 2001-01-01

Bulungan regency is the northern part of the province of East Kalimantan Indonesia In the course of the last decade Kalimantan s or Borneo s hinterland has been the target of unprecedented non timber forest products NTFP collecting activity More intensive NTFP use has contributed to unsustainable extractive practices and environmental damage and to deep social and political disruption This book examines northern East Kalimantan s trade networks The historical scope extends from about 1880 to present and primarily focus on Long Pujungan and Malinau districts Thematically the study is on institutions and land and forest use patterns and their changes with emphasis on social and economic features It explains regional patterns in the light of past relationships between tribal interior groups and trading coastal polities and seeks to understand both the economic contribution of NTFPs and the institutions controlling their use It offers some broad ideas that should prove useful in understanding how the past has shaped the present and how the present socio economic situation owes many of its specific features to past patterns and events

Tribal Communities in the Malay World Geoffrey Benjamin, 2003-08-01 The Malay World Alam Melayu spanning the Malay Peninsula much of Sumatra and parts of Borneo has long contained within it a variety of populations Most of the Malays have been organized into the different kingdoms kerajaan Melayu from which they have derived their identity But the territories of those kingdoms have also included tribal peoples both Malay and non Malay who have held themselves apart from those kingdoms in varying degrees In the last three decades research on these tribal societies has aroused increasing interest This book explores the ways in which the character of these societies relates to the Malay kingdoms that have held power in the region for many centuries past as well as to the modern nation states of the region It brings together researchers committed to comparative analysis of the tribal groups living on either side of the Malacca Straits in Indonesia Malaysia Thailand and Singapore New theoretical and descriptive approaches are presented for the study of the social and cultural continuities and discontinuities manifested by tribal life in the region

East Timor Hal Hill, Joao Mariano de Sousa Saldanha, 2001 As the world's newest independent nation the challenges facing East Timor are particularly acute Per capita income is roughly 300 making it one of the world's poorest nations There also remains the possibility of difficult relations with its giant neighbor Indonesia This comprehensive volume is the first serious analysis of East Timor's economic prospects It draws on local as well as international expertise from both academics and policy makers Issues covered include international economic relations agriculture finance and infrastructure and political institutions

Religion and Architecture in Premodern Indonesia G. Domenig, 2014-04-03 In his richly illustrated Religion and Architecture in Premodern Indonesia Gaudenz Domenig investigates the nature of Indonesian ethnic religions by focusing on land opening rituals sacred groves and architectural responses to the custom of presenting offerings Since deities and spirits were supposed to taste offerings on the spot it was a task of architecture to attract them and to guide them into houses where offerings were presented Domenig quotes numerous sources to show that certain material elements of the house were viewed as spirit attractors spirit ladders or spirit pathways Various exotic features of Indonesian vernacular architecture thus become understandable as relics from times when architecture was still responding to indigenous religions practised in the archipelago

Crossing Histories and Ethnographies Ricardo Roque, Elizabeth G. Traube, 2019-06-20 The key question for many anthropologists and historians today is not whether to cross the boundary between their disciplines but whether the idea of a disciplinary boundary should be sustained Reinterpreting the dynamic interplay between archive and field these essays propose a method for mutually productive crossings between historical and ethnographic research It engages critically with the colonial pasts of indigenous societies and examines how fieldwork and archival studies together lead to fruitful insights into the making of different colonial historicities Timor Leste's unusually long and in some ways unique colonial history is explored as a compelling case for these crossings

Smallholders and Stockbreeders P. Boomgaard, David E.F. Henley, 2021-11-15 Historians of Southeast Asia have traditionally preferred to write about politics and culture rather than economics and ecology and where they have looked at the history of agriculture they have most often concentrated on cash crops like sugar coffee and rubber which figure prominently in colonial records Smallholders and stockbreeders by contrast provides a rare survey of the history of foodcrop farming and a unique look at the history of animal husbandry in the Southeast Asian region Thirteen contributions by an international selection of expert authors cover topics ranging from the agricultural economy of precolonial Java to the growth of rice production in the

Mekong Delta since 1950 and from the breeding of horses on the northern borderlands of mainland Southeast Asia to the production and consumption of beef in the Philippines New light is shed on old questions regarding the directions in which Southeast Asian agriculture has evolved over the centuries and new questions raised regarding the cultural demographic economic and political determinants of farming practices While the geographical and chronological scales of analysis vary most chapters deal with relatively large areas and with developments over periods of 100 years or more Besides production for subsistence commercial aspects of livestock and foodcrop farming are also given due attention and prove to have been important in many parts of the region from very early periods Smallholders and stockbreeders is essential reading for anyone interested in the agricultural history of Southeast Asia whether for its own sake or in connection with other aspects of regional history or for purposes of comparison with other parts of the world Ethnoecology Virginia D.

Nazarea,1999-01-01 The re emerging field of ethnoecology offers a promising way to document and analyze human environment interactions Case studies by international experts explore the varied views of scholars on the human dimension of conservation and the different views of local peoples regarding their own environments Filled with peoples voices from North and South America Africa and Asia these cases cover a range of issues natural resource conservation and sustainable development the relationship between local knowledge and biodiversity the role of the commons in development and the importance of diversity and equity in environmental management Ethnoecology Situated Knowledge Located Lives is intended for a wide range of specialists not only in social and natural sciences but also in agricultural studies It conveys the overriding importance of this powerful methodological approach in providing insiders perspectives on their environments and how they manage them Plural Ecologies in Southeast Asia Timo Duile,Kristina Großmann,Michaela Haug,Guido Sprenger,2023-06-15 This book draws on ethnographic studies in Southeast Asia to provide new insights into human environmental relationships and ecologies together with a set of theoretical innovations Contextualizing ecologies in this region as pluralizing or hegemonic conflictive or cooperative the case studies in these chapters bring into dialogue ontological approaches the issue of distinct worldviews and concepts of nature on the one hand and political ecology and power relations on the other They discuss plural ecologies in diverse settings reaching from urban Vietnam to the Javanese coast and the dense forests of the Southeast Asian highlands Southeast Asia is one of the most biodiverse and culturally diverse regions in the world Thus what occurs in this region is vitally important to the future of Earth Documenting the plurality and dynamics of ecologies in Southeast Asia this book provides prime examples for the potentials of alternative human environmental relationships and sustainable development It will be of interest to academics studying political ecology environmental anthropology sustainability sciences political sciences development studies human geography human ecology Southeast Asian studies and Asian studies Borneo Transformed Jean-Francois Bissonnette,Stephane Bernard,Rodolphe De Koninck,2011-03-01 Since the 1960s Southeast Asia s agricultural sector has experienced phenomenal growth with increases in production linked to an energy intensive capitalization of agriculture and the rapid development of agrifood systems and agribusiness Agricultural intensification and territorial expansion have been key to this process with expansion of areas under cultivation playing an unusually important role in the transformation of the countryside and livelihoods of its inhabitants Borneo with vast tracts of land not yet under crops has been the epicenter of this expansion process with rubber and oil palm acting as the spearhead Indonesia s Kalimantan provinces and the Malaysian states of Sabah and Sarawak have all undergone major changes but the time frames have varied as have the crops involved Agricultural expansion in Borneo is both an economic and a political process and it has brought about profound socio economic transformations including deforestation and development of communication networks There has also been rapid population growth much faster than in either Indonesia or Malaysia as a whole with attendant pressures on employment housing and social services Until the end of the 20th century agricultural expansion in Indonesia and Malaysia was largely state driven with the goal of poverty reduction Subsequently as in Borneo boom crop expansion has been taken over by private corporations that are driven by profit maximization rather than poverty reduction

Fox, 2014-07-28 This collection of eighteen papers explores issues in the study of semantic parallelism a world wide tradition in the composition of oral poetry It is concerned with both comparative issues and the intensive study of a single living poetic tradition of composition in strict canonical parallelism The papers in the volume were written at intervals from 1971 to 2014 a period of over forty years They are a summation of a career long research effort that continues to take shape The concluding essay reflects on possible directions for future research
