Resistance and Survival Ann

González, 2022-08-23 In her analysis of some of the most interesting and important children's literature from Central America and the Caribbean Ann González uses postcolonial narrative theory to expose and decode what marginalized peoples say when they tell stories to their children and how the interpretations children give these stories today differ from the ways they have read them in the past González reads against the grain deconstructing and critiquing dominant discourses to reveal consistent narrative patterns throughout the region that have helped children maneuver in a world dominated by powerful figures from parents to agents of social control political repression and global takeover Many of these stories are in some way lessons in resistance and survival in a world where the toughest kid on the block often an outsider demands that a group of children play or pay on his terms González demonstrates that where traditional strategies have proposed the model of the trickster or the paradoxically astute fool to mock the pretensions of the would be oppressor new trends indicate that the region's children and those who write for them show increasing interest in playing the game on their own terms getting to know the Other embracing difference and redefining their identity and role within the new global culture Resistance and Survival emphasizes the hope underlying this contemporary children's literature for a world in which all voices can be heard and valued the hope of an authentic happy ending

The Voices of Suspense and Their Translation in Thrillers

Susanne M. Cadera, Anita Pavic Pintaric, 2014-03-05 The volume aims to be a reference work for all researchers interested in the study of fictional dialogue and its translation in suspense novels and films as well as in related genres The volume also aims to determine the interplay between the creation of suspense and fictional dialogue The particular interest in dialogue comes from the host of roles it plays in fiction. It helps create suspense and arouses a whole range of feelings in the reader or the audience related to the development of the plot. Fictional dialogue is the discursive method of evoking orality, conferring authenticity and credibility on a plot and giving fictional characters a voice. As a narrative strategy, dialogue is an important resource that enables the writer to shape the character's subjectivity. In thrillers, the character's voice is part of the process of creating suspense, an element of uncertainty, anxiety, and excitement which is not exclusive to this genre. To clearly differentiate suspense from the tension created by other types of fiction, this volume aims to study the relationship between the characters' voices and the building of suspense and to describe the translation difficulties arising from this particular interdependence. American Book Publishing Record, 2007 Handbook of Research on Children's and Young

Subject Guide to Books in Print, 1996 Resources in Education, 2001 Reader Response in Secondary and College Classrooms Nicholas J. Karolides, 2013-04-15 This text, based on Louise M. Rosenblatt's transactional model of literature, focuses on the application of transactional reader response theory in the classroom. It grows from frequent requests from secondary school and college teachers for teaching suggestions on how to put theory into practice. This is not a "What should I do on Monday" cookbook, but an expression of the practice of theory in college and secondary school classrooms. The chapters portray a spectrum of strategies, including biopoems, expressive and imaginative writing, journal writing, readers theater, role playing, and unsent letters, using as examples individual works from several genres. Recognizing that teachers who may have been trained in other theories and methodologies may be hesitant about their quite different role and expectations in the reader-centered classroom, the authors provide stepping stones to develop readiness and confidence, suggestions and insights to ease the transition to the transactional model of teaching and learning. Pedagogical features: An explanatory introduction to each section defines its orientation and describes the content and direction of the chapters; it contains Invitations elicit engagement of readers with concepts attitudes or strategies presented in the chapters they invite readers as individuals or members of a small group to consider ideas or to practice a strategy among other activities in order to enhance understandings A glossary defines key concepts and strategies discussed in the text A bibliography provides an extensive list of resources books and journal articles both theoretical and applied New in the second edition Six new chapters three deal with the roles of film as literature in the English classroom and three with enhancing multicultural understandings Updates and revisions to several chapters that appeared in the first edition Invitations new in this edition have been added to focus and expand readers thinking
