The Learning Garden Veronica Gaylie, 2009. This book tells the story of building a campus learning garden over a series of cohorts of student teachers and environmental education students. The project began with high ideals, no funding, and a strong desire to do something about the environment; the result was a transformation in attitude toward nature, community, and toward the learning process itself. Examining the process through three key metaphors: garden as environment, garden as community, garden as transformation, this book provides a bridge between theory and practice for ecology-centered teaching and learning.

The Ecology of the School John Eggleston, 2012. Within a single educational system, that of England and Wales, the nature of schooling available to a child can be dramatically different. Even between residential areas, the differences in educational climate can be striking. Apart from differences in the organization of schools and the availability of buildings, teachers, and resources, there are also significant ideological variations between local education authorities. This book considers the evidence of such differences, some of the environmental factors (political, social, and economic) that may account for their distribution and the consequences that appear to spring from them.

Ecology in Education Monica Hale, 1995-09-28. Ecological and environmental education in schools and institutes of further and higher education has gained increasing importance in recent years, both as an area of study in its own right and as a component of other disciplines. There is now a requirement in many countries to include the environment in both formal and informal curricula. This volume presents a long overdue account of the status, progress, and underlying concepts of ecological education. It explores areas of recent development and debate in ecological and environmental education, describes the evolution and development of environmental education in different countries, and examines the importance and provision for fieldwork. Case studies illustrate how ecological studies are undertaken in several culturally different settings. This book will interest teachers and research workers in ecology, environmental science, and education.

Teaching in the Sciences Acram Taji, 2005-02-14. Gain a clear understanding of what effective teachers do and how successful students learn. Over the past 20 years, a greater concentration on research aimed at both teaching and learning has revealed that chalk and talk, teaching copying notes, and cookbook practical lessons offer little challenge to students.
