Teaching the Holocaust in School History Lucy Russell, 2006-08-17 If we expose students to a study of human suffering we have a responsibility to guide them through it But is this the role of school history This issue is the rationale behind teaching the Holocaust primarily historical moral or social Is the Holocaust to be taught as a historical event with a view to developing students critical historical skills or as a tool to combat continuing prejudice and discrimination These profound questions lie at the heart of Lucy Russell's fascinating analysis of teaching the Holocaust in school history She considers how the topic of the Holocaust is currently being taught in schools in the UK and overseas Drawing on interviews with educationalists academics and teachers she discovers that there is in fact a surprising lack of consensus regarding the purpose of and approaches to teaching the Holocaust in history Indeed the majority view is distinctly non historical there is a tendency to teach the Holocaust from a social and moral perspective and not as history This book attempts to explain and debate this phenomenon

Testimony, Tensions, and Tikkun

Myrna Goldenberg,Rochelle L. Millen,2011-10-01 The Holocaust was a cataclysmic upheaval in politics culture society ethics and theology The very fact of its occurrence has been forcing scholars for more than sixty years to assess its impact on their disciplines Educators whose work is represented in this volume ask their students to grapple with one of the grand horrors of the twentieth century and to accept the responsibility of building a more just peaceful world tikkun olam They acknowledge that their task as teachers of the Holocaust is both imperative and impossible they must teach something that cannot be taught as one contributor puts it and they recognize the formidable limits of language thought imagination and comprehension that thwart and obscure the story they seek to tell Yet they are united in their keen sense of pursuing an effort that is pivotal to our understanding of the past and to whatever prospects we may have for a more decent and humane future A Holocaust course refers to an instructional offering that may focus entirely on the Holocaust may serve as a touchstone in a larger program devoted to genocide studies or may constitute a unit within a wider curriculum including art literature ethics history religious studies jurisprudence philosophy theology film studies Jewish studies German studies composition urban studies or architecture It may also constitute a main thread that runs through an interdisciplinary course The first section of Testimony Tensions and Tikkun can be read as an injunction to teach and act in a manner consistent with a profound cautionary message that there can be no tolerance for moral neutrality about the Holocaust and that there is no subject in the humanities or social sciences where its shadow has not reached The second section is devoted to the process and nature of students learning These chapters describe efforts to guide students through terrain that hides cognitive and emotional land mines The authors examine their responsibility to foster students personal connection with the events of the Holocaust but in such a way that they not instill hopelessness about the future The third and final section moves the subject of the Holocaust out of the classroom and into broader institutional settings universities and community colleges and their surrounding communities along with museums and memorial sites For the educators represented here teaching itself is testimony The story of the Holocaust is one that the world will fail to master at its own peril The editors of this volume and many of its contributors are members of the Pastora Goldner Holocaust Symposium Led since its founding in 1996 by Leonard Grob and Henry F Knight the symposium s scholars a group that is interfaith international interdisciplinary and intergenerational meet biennially in Oxfordshire England

Teaching a Dark Chapter Daniela R. P. Weiner,2024-07-15 Teaching a Dark Chapter explores how textbook narratives about the Fascist Nazi past in Italy East Germany and West Germany followed relatively calm undisturbed paths of little change until isolated flashpoints catalyzed the educational infrastructure into periods of rapid transformation Though these flashpoints varied among Italy and the Germanys they all roughly conformed to a chronological scheme and permanently changed how each dark past was represented Historians have often neglected textbooks as sources in their engagement with the reconstruction of postfascist states and the development of postwar memory culture But as Teaching a Dark Chapter demonstrates textbooks yield new insights and suggest a new chronology of the changes in postwar memory culture that other sources overlook Employing a methodological and temporal rethinking of the narratives surrounding the development of European Holocaust memory Daniela R P Weiner reveals how long before 1968 textbooks in these three countries served as important tools to influence public memory about Nazi Fascist atrocities As Fascism had been spread through education then education must play a key role in undoing the damage Thus to repair and shape postwar societies textbooks became an avenue to inculcate youths with desirable democratic and socialist values Teaching a Dark Chapter weds the historical study of public memory with the educational study of textbooks to ask how and why the textbooks were created what they said and how they affected the society around them Holocaust and the Moving Image Toby Haggith,Joanna Newman,2005 Based on an event held at the Imperial War Museum in 2001 this book is a blend of voices and perspectives archivists curators filmmakers scholars and

An Education in 'Evil' Cathryn van Kessel, 2019-04-15 This book asserts that engaging with divergent understandings about the nature of evil and how it functions can help those interested in education think through issues in curriculum pedagogy and beyond The author provokes thinking about and through the concept of evil in the spirit of thoughtful education as opposed to thoughtless schooling toward how we might live together in less harmful ways Although thinking about evil can be uncomfortable and
