described in the context of specific skills A theme throughout this book is that much learning is implicit the types of knowledge and relations that can profitably be learned implicitly and the conditions under which this learning benefits performance are discussed The question of whether skill acquisition in cognitive domains shares underlying mechanisms with the acquisition of perceptual and motor skills is also addressed with a view to identifying commonalities that allow for widely applicable general theories of skill acquisition Because the complexity of real world environments puts demands on the individual to adapt to new circumstances the question of how skills research can be applied to organizational training contexts is an important one To address this this book dedicates much content to practical applications covering such issues as how training needs can be captured with task and job analyses and how to maximize training transfer by taking trainee self efficacy and goal orientation into account This comprehensive yet readable textbook is optimized for students of cognitive psychology looking to understand the intricacies of skill acquisition

Singleton, 2013-03-09 This is the book of a conference held at Leuven Belgium from June 5-9 1979 under the same title The conference was sponsored by the Scientific Affairs Division of the North Atlantic Treaty Organisation Brussels We would like to thank Dr Bayraktar of NATO for his part in facilitating the organisation and support of the conference We are also indebted to the authorities of the University of Leuven who provided excellent facilities and particularly to Professor Verhaegen of the Department of Psychology who acted as academic host to our conference The aim of the conference was to bring together two groups of psychologists who have been developing in parallel their particular methods of studying and describing human behaviour The skill psychologists began with the study of motor skills which are relatively easily observable in real jobs and recordable in the laboratory More recently interests have shifted from motor skills through perceptual skills to the process skills where the operator is attending to many sources of information in the form of dials charts and computer outputs and adjusting some process to maintain its stability and maximise the yield Currently problems are arising of how to analyse situations in which several skilled individuals work closely together in small team performance The social psychologists have followed an analogous but different path of progress
