The Black High School and Its Community Frederick A. Rodgers, 1975-01-01 Black Cultural Capital Vanessa Garry, E. Paulette Isaac-Savage, Sha-Lai L. Williams, 2023-09-01

In antebellum America Black children even those of tax paying Blacks in most states could not attend White public schools or in some states any schools Nevertheless with the signing of the Emancipation Proclamation in 1863 Blacks assumed they would receive all inalienable rights granted to them as American freedmen For most the right to a proper public education for their children was paramount Nevertheless White educators often neglected or poorly implemented Black schools especially secondary schools With their reluctance to provide schools for Blacks African American communities organized and petitioned school districts to develop Black schools on par with those for Whites In the book Black Cultural Capital Activism that Spurred African American High Schools authors describe the role of the Black community in the development of high schools Their narratives reveal White educators unwillingness to implement state laws requiring the education of all children Their lack of engagement galvanized Blacks to petition boards to adhere to the law Additionally they forced school districts to hire Black teachers and provide facilities for Black children equal to those of White children The fruits of their labor enabled Black children to attend suitable facilities as well as learn from Black teachers who attended outstanding White and Black colleges and universities Furthermore stories of the high schools illustrate how communities sprouted up around them during their heydays as well as for some their demise as laws and court decisions eradicated Jim Crow and enabled all Americans to live and learn where they desired

ENDORSEMENTS Throughout America the freedom dreams of Black people and the intellectual currents that guided them were first unleashed within one room schoolhouses dilapidated shacks and church basements that were converted into laboratories of discovery and dissent In short Black spaces matter and have always mattered in the struggle for Black liberation The authors of Black Cultural Capital have delivered one of the most comprehensive collection of essays to date that highlight the monumental legacy and rich history of America's first Black high schools Utilizing a vast array of sources the authors have created an intimate portrait of the struggle to carve out historic spaces that educated and affirmed Black youth while simultaneously countering pernicious systems of white supremacy that sought to undermine them at every step This volume of essays is a must have for any serious scholar or student of the Black freedom struggle in America Jelani M Favors North Carolina A T State University This is a long awaited quintessential contribution to our still incomplete knowledge and understanding of the unique but intertwined histories of Black education and secondary schools in the United States The narratives are incisive enlightening and inspiring A welcome advancement to the historical foundations of education Tondra L Loder Jackson The University of Alabama at Birmingham At a time when there is a deservedly greater appreciation for historically Black colleges and universities HBCUs we must also remember that K 12 Black high schools played a pivotal role in anchoring communities and creating a sense of place and freedom for Black people In this edited book Black Cultural Capital Activism that Spurred African American High Schools Drs Vanessa B Garry E Paulette Isaac Savage and Sha Lai L Williams produced a timely and much needed book about the significant role Black high schools have historically and continue to play in Black communities and the Black freedom struggle With detailed historical case studies of Black high schools throughout the United States the various authors illuminate how these schools served as pillars in Black communities Jerome Morris The University of Missouri St Louis

The African American Struggle for Secondary Schooling, 1940-1980 John L. Rury, Shirley A. Hill, 2015-04-24 This is the first comprehensive account of African American secondary education in the postwar era Drawing on quantitative datasets as well as oral history this compelling narrative examines how African Americans narrowed the racial gap in high school completion The authors explore regional variations in high school attendance across the United States and how intraracial factors affected attendance within racial groups They also examine the larger social historical context such as the national high school revolution the civil rights movement campaigns to expand schooling and urging youth to stay in school and Black migration northward Closing chapters focus on desegregation and the urban crisis of the 1960s and 1970s that accelerated White flight and funding problems for urban school systems The conclusion summarizes these developments and briefly looks at the period since 1980 when secondary attainment levels stopped advancing for Blacks and Whites alike

Book Highlights A comprehensive history drawing on statistical analysis archival research and interviews with African Americans who attended school in the 1940s and 1950s Lessons from the past showing how parents and local communities played the most direct and dynamic role in the fight for access to education Today's major challenges including the growth of inner city poverty and changing family structures John L Rury is professor of education and by courtesy history at the University of Kansas Shirley A Hill is professor of sociology at the University of Kansas Based on prodigious research The African American Struggle for Secondary Schooling sets a new standard of excellence in social history and policy studies The authors evocatively recreate the passions of the civil rights movement and centrality of public schools in the ongoing quest for justice opportunity and freedom William J Reese Carl F Kaestle WARF Professor of Educational Policy Studies and History University of Wisconsin Madison This book is a rich and compelling addition to the literature on secondary education generally and on secondary education for African Americans specifically It will set the standard for historical studies on American high schools for a long time to come Jeffrey Mirel David L Angus Collegiate Chair of Education Professor of History University of Michigan The African American Struggle for Secondary Schooling fills a major gap in the history of African American educational history This book will be on my shelf and will no doubt be on the shelves of scholars and students who study African American educational history Thomas V O'Brien Professor and Chair Department of Educational Studies and Research University of Southern Mississippi This is the only book length account of the growth and impact of secondary education for African Americans post 1930 With a unique and original analysis the authors frame key themes not only within the common historiographical tradition of an unfolding of American Communities and Educational Institutions Jones, Patrice Wynette,2019-12-13 Historically African American communities were marked by a strong sense of community promoted by limited resources and racial segregation However with integration African American populations grew less concentrated in the same areas and this population of people began to rely less on each other In an effort to attain equality which still at times feels elusive and challenged the sense of community and impact of education once prevalent among African Americans has suffered Fostering Collaborations Between African American Communities and Educational Institutions is a pivotal reference source that explores pre segregation experiences of community and education as well as the changes among HBCUs and public education in predominately African American and poor areas The book sheds light on the relationship between racial and educational disparities and reveals the impact of community and cultural co dependence in moving African Americans toward a more socially equitable place within American culture Covering topics such as the achievement gap community relationships and teacher education this publication is ideally designed for educators higher education faculty HBCUs researchers policymakers non profit organizers historians sociologists academicians and students Ebony ,1988-09 EBONY is the flagship magazine of Johnson

Hearings, Reports and Prints of the House Committee on Education and Labor United States. Congress. House. Committee on Education and Labor,1972 School Desegregation George W. Noblit,2015-03-17 This book is written for the

Millennial Generation to educate them about what school desegregation was actually about the struggle over white domination in the United States The textbooks they read as high school students describe the heroic efforts of African Americans to achieve civil rights but do not describe who was denying them these rights white Americans The oral histories in this book reveal how individuals navigated efforts to achieve educational equity amidst efforts to reassert white domination. These accounts counter the textbook history the Millennial Generation read which omits the massive white resistance to school desegregation the various ways whites used subterfuge to slow down and redirect school desegregation in what would more benefit whites and the concerted white political backlash that has been ensconced in educational policy and reform beginning with A Nation at Risk and continuing in No Child Left Behind. That is educational policy as we know it is all about asserting white domination and not about educating children and thus the Millennial Generation is faced with undoing what their parents and grandparents have done.

A Community of Voices on Education and the African American Experience Hazel Arnett Ervin, Lois Jamison Sheer, 2016-02-29 This book offers a history of African American education while also serving as a companion text for teachers students and researchers in cultural criticism American and African American studies postcolonialism historiography and psychoanalytics. Overall it represents essential reading for scholars critics leaders of educational policy and all others interested in ongoing discussions not only about the role of community family teachers and others in facilitating quality education for the citizenry but also about ensuring the posterity of a society via equal access to and attainment of quality education by its constituents of color. Particularly this volume fills a void in the annals of African American history and African American education by addressing the vibrancy of an education ethos within Black America which has unequivocally served as cultural historical political legal and theoretical references.
