Warren, 1994 From Abraham Lincoln's wry observation that Harriet Beecher Stowe was the little lady who made this big war to Mark Twain's wild proposition that Walter Scott had somehow touched off sectional hostilities there have been many competing theories about the impact of literature on nineteenth century American society In this provocative book Kenneth W Warren argues that the rise of literary realism late in the century was shaped by and in turn helped to shape the politics of racial difference following Reconstruction Taking up a variety of novelists from this period including most prominently Henry James and William Dean Howells Warren demonstrates that even works not directly concerned with race were instrumental in forging a Jim Crow nation As a literary history Black and White Strangers places the writing of realistic novels within the context of their serialization in the monthly magazines of the 1880s By viewing these novels in light of editorial policies regarding social propriety national unity and literary aesthetics Warren reveals the often surprising ways in which realistic fiction at once challenged and abetted the growing conservatism of racial politics Warren also seeks to bridge the gap between American and African American literary studies which have hitherto been strangers to each other James and Howells he argues can be understood fully only when read alongside W E B Du Bois and Frances E W Harper James's The American Scene for instance must be seen as a companion text to Du Bois's The Souls of Black Folk In making these connections Warren challenges American and African American studies to see themselves as mutually constitutive enterprises and to question the value of canon based criticism in any complete investigation of the meaning of race in American cultural history

The End of the Trail Robert Ervin Howard, 2005 I was born in the little ex cowtown of Peaster Texas Robert E Howard wrote to a friend and the first story he ever published in 1922 was a Western sketch Although he went on to write hundreds of fantasy tales set in Conan's Hyborian kingdoms Kull's ancient Atlantis and Solomon Kane's darkest Africa his heart always remained in the West In 1929 he began publishing Western tales but they were unlike any the genre had ever seen they didn't have happy endings or perfect heroes They were grimmer more action packed even cataclysmically violent Howard was fascinated by outlaws and gunmen especially those who crossed over to become lawmen and he knew and interviewed many old timers old law officers trail drivers cattlemen buffalo hunters and pioneers The twelve stories collected here show a West stripped down to essentials where internalized codes of personal honor loyalty and courage matter more than laws progress or civilization Also included are four articles suggestive of his wide ranging interests from Billy the Kid to the eerie and unexplained happenings on the frontier To me the annals of the land pulse with blood and life Howard wrote and his Western stories are full of memorable characters heart pounding action and the distinctive prose generations of fans have come to know and expect and appreciate The Red and the Black
