Sex, Power and the Folly of Marriage in Women's Novels of the 1920s Judy Cornes, 2015-10-26 The Americans experienced great social change in the decade following World War I. They were restless, often discontented, searching for the good life, the one promised to the generation who cheered on by patriotic slogans and propaganda enlisted to fight on European battlefields. While young writers such as Hemingway and Fitzgerald romanticized the lives of Americans in postwar Europe and the U.S., a number of women authors in the 1920s looked through a darker lens. The novels of Edith Wharton, Willa Cather, Margaret Wilson, Edna Ferber, Ellen Glasgow, Dorothy Scarborough, and Dawn Powell, set mainly in the 19th century, searched the past for the origins of postwar upheaval, especially with respect to the status of women. Today a few iconic male novelists of the 1920s are synonymous with the spirit and culture of the Jazz Age. This book focuses on their female contemporaries, largely neglected by both critics and readers who remain relevant for their exploration of timeless social and psychological themes: the battle of the sexes and its tragic consequences.

Beyond Dixon of Dock Green
Susan Sydney-Smith, 2002-05-24 In 1955 a brand new television series Dixon of Dock Green came to Britain's screens, whose eponymous hero had featured in The Blue Lamp 1950. Although it has traditionally been assumed that the uniform police series begins with the Ealing film, this book based on original archive research challenges this assumption, proposing that in fact these series were shaped by changes in television's social role, from the relaying of news to the replaying of stories. Susan Sydney-Smith demonstrates how the development of the British television police drama, and indeed British television in general, was more complex than accepted accounts allow. She traces numerous lineages from inter-war public service films, live studio crime reconstructions, and story documentaries such as 1942's Target for Tonight, through to the mix of public service and entertainment values embodied by the BBC Television Light Entertainment's Dixon of Dock Green. Showing how the genre mapped new social and regional geographies, from Dixon's metropolitan policeman to the gritty northern realism of Jacks and Knaves and Z Cars, with its irascible Barlow, the author follows the increasing commercialization of television in the sixties, investigating how the BBC set about restoring the values of southern England in the 1966 Z Cars spin-off Softly, Softly, with its more palatable protagonist. The book also offers insights not only into the relationship between early British television and its cinematic forebears, but also early radio.
