The Biology Of Cancer A New Approach:

The Biology of Cancer P.R. Burch, 2012-12-06 Of all the diseases that afflict mankind those described as cancer evoke the strongest emotions Cancer connotes pain protracted suffering hideous growth and death It is widely and justifiably feared In medically advanced countries malignant neoplasms the official term for cancers account for a substantial proportion of all deaths Out of a total of 575194 deaths in England and Wales during the year 1970 some 117076 or 20.4 per cent were attributed to neoplasms of one kind or another Registrar General 1972 Diseases of the circulatory system mainly arteriosclerotic and degenerative heart disease claimed many more victims being responsible for some 50.6 per cent of all deaths but our psyche evidently responds more to the manner of the disease than to the number of deaths it causes Many of us will have witnessed the deterioration of a close friend or relative suffering from an inoperable cancer such an experience induces a sense of hopelessness and helplessness The feelings of sorrow and distress can be a powerful stimulus to action and they often result in dedicated and tireless research efforts At the same time the very strength and depth of the commitment may sometimes be incompatible with the detachment that is needed for objective analysis and a wise strategy Not too rigorously we reason that if only we can discover the causes of cancer then our problems will be solved and our agonies relieved Remove the cause prevent the cancer The logic exerts an irresistible appeal The Biology of Cancer, 1966

New Approaches in Cancer Pharmacology: Drug Design and Development Paul Workman, 2012-12-06

The European School of Oncology came into existence to respond to a need for information education and training in the field of the diagnosis and treatment of cancer There are two main reasons why such an initiative was considered necessary Firstly the teaching of oncology requires a rigorously multidisciplinary approach which is difficult for the Universities to put into practice since their system is mainly disciplinary orientated Secondly the rate of technological development that impinges on the diagnosis and treatment of cancer has been so rapid that it is not an easy task for medical faculties to adapt their curricula flexibly With its residential courses for organ pathologies and the seminars on new techniques laser monoclonal antibodies imaging techniques etc or on the principal therapeutic controversies conservative or mutilating surgery primary or adjuvant chemotherapy radiotherapy alone or integrated it is the ambition of the European School of Oncology to fill a cultural and scientific gap and thereby create a bridge between the University and Industry and between these two and daily medical practice One of the more recent initiatives of ESO has been the institution of permanent study groups also called task forces where a limited number of leading experts are invited to meet once a year with the aim of defining the state of the art and possibly reaching a consensus on future developments in specific fields of oncology removal of the primary tumor and treatment This long latency in the manifestation of recurrent metastatic disease is explained clinically by the persistence of quiescent tumor cells that disseminated early in the course of the disease from the primary tumor to select distant organs These residing disseminated tumor cells DTCs at distant organs lay dormant and asymptomatic until reawakened to form overt metastases Importantly the quiescent nature of these hibernating DTCs facilitates their resistance to conventional therapies that target actively dividing tumor cells Therefore unraveling the biology of dormancy and reactivation of the residing DTCs to life threatening lesions is of utmost importance in order to develop new therapeutic strategies to prevent the recurrent metastatic disease from ever emerging or to better treat these recurrent cancers The mechanisms underlying the biology of tumor dormancy and their reactivation to overt metastases are just beginning to emerge thanks to a growing appreciation of the potentially chronic nature of some cancers and the development of experimental model systems for their study In this Research Topic we will follow the journey of circulating tumor cells CTCs dispatching from the primary site until their successful lodging into a new and foreign site to become DTCs We will explore the intrinsic mechanisms along with microenvironmental cues and niches that they encounter during their journey that may dictate their fate
