Bodies in the Bog and the Archaeological Imagination Karin Sanders, 2009-12 Over the past few centuries northern Europe's bogs have yielded mummified men women and children who were deposited there as sacrifices in the early Iron Age and kept startlingly intact by the chemical properties of peat In this remarkable account of their modern afterlives Karin Sanders argues that the discovery of bog bodies began an extraordinary and ongoing cultural journey Throughout the nineteenth and twentieth centuries Sanders shows these eerily preserved remains came alive in art and science as material metaphors for such concepts as trauma nostalgia and identity Sigmund Freud Joseph Beuys Seamus Heaney and other major figures have used them to reconsider fundamental philosophical literary aesthetic and scientific concerns Exploring this intellectual spectrum Sanders contends that the power of bog bodies to provoke such a wide range of responses is rooted in their unique status as both archeological artifacts and human beings They emerge as corporeal time capsules that transcend archaeology to challenge our assumptions about what we can know about the past By restoring them to the roster of cultural phenomena that force us to confront our ethical and aesthetic boundaries Bodies in the Bog excavates anew the question of what it means to be human

Luykx,Martin J. Frissel,2012-12-06 Most of the nuclear facilities built since the Second World War have ceased active operation and have been decommissioned Some of the sites are heavily contaminated with radioactive substances Correct and efficient action to mitigate the radiological consequences of such contamination will only be possible when the behaviour of radionuclides in the terrestrial environment is sufficiently well known Yet radioecologists often find it difficult to study the transfer of radioactivity in agricultural land and semi natural ecosystems because of the complexity and diversity of such environments The present book presents an analysis of all the factors that affect the behaviour of radionuclides as they move from their point of release through the environment and then enter the tissues of biota living in the ecosystems in particular plants and animals consumed by humans The course on which the book is based was held in a region that is heavily contaminated by radioactive discharges into the environment during nuclear weapons fabrication in the 1950s and 60s and due to a severe accidental release following the explosion of a rad waste tank in 1957 This allowed in situ training of the students The book s main emphasis is on specific radioecological problems in severely contaminated areas in the former Soviet Union the Southern Urals Trail the rivers Techa Isert Tobol Irtis Ob and the 30 km zone around Chernobyl Systems examined include soils arable and pasture land forests lakes and rivers Special attention is paid to the effects of radiation on natural ecosystems trees soil dwelling organisms and aquatic organisms Synergistic effects are also considered Short medium and long term countermeasures are discussed      Irish Contemporary Landscapes in Literature and the Arts M.
