TESTIMONIAL If you enjoyed 1984 by Orwell The Space Merchants by Kornbluth and Pohl or The Windup Girl by Bacigalupi you will love this book Ralph Kerminski reviewer The Right Medicine David Cundiff, Mary Ellen McCarthy, 2012-12-06 When Dr David Cundiff called me with a proposal to help research and write The Right Medicine I was intrigued but skeptical His ideas for reform of the US health care system were visionary radical and highly original but would they work As a Wall Street analyst and long time student of the health care system I had my doubts had read David's book on hospice care Euthanasia Is Not the Answer and was impressed And I had recently witnessed the slow death of my grandmother from the complications of Alzheimer's disease Despite the fact that she was and had been suffering for years and despite the fact that her care was an extraordinary emotional and financial burden nursing home administrators and physicians encouraged one last ditch treatment after another pulling her back each time from the brink of what would have been a merciful death I knew that David was correct in his contention that hospice care and a more sparing application of high technology medicine were major keys to improving health care I also realized after a decade of analyzing the health care industry that a government funded system along the lines of Canada's was probably the only way to rein in rampant inflation and provide universal coverage But David had other ideas too He argued that preventive care could dramatically cut both the incidence and costs associated with the most common causes of illness in America today

A Closer Examination of

Applicant Faking Behavior Richard L. Griffith, Mitchell H. Peterson, 2006-05-01 The faking of personality tests in a selection context has been perceived as somewhat of a nuisance variable and largely ignored or glossed over by the academic literature Instead of examining the phenomenon many researchers have ignored its existence or trivialized the impact of faking on personality measurement The present volume is a much needed timely corrective to this attitude In a wide range of chapters representing different philosophical and empirical approaches the assembled authors demonstrate the courage to tackle this important and difficult topic head on as it deserves to be The writers of these chapters identify two critical concerns with faking First if people fake their responses to personality tests the resulting scores and the inferences drawn from them might become invalid For example people who fake their responses by describing themselves as diligent and prompt might earn better conscientiousness scores and therefore be hired for jobs requiring this trait that in fact they might not perform satisfactorily Second the dishonesty of the faker might itself be a problem separate from its effect on a particular score Someone who lies on a pre employment test might also lie about the hours he or she works or how much cash is in the till at the end of the shift Worse these two problems might exacerbate each other a dishonest applicant might get higher scores on the traits the employer desires through his or her lying whereas the compulsively honest applicant might get low scores as an ironic penalty for being honest Outcomes like these harm employers and applicants alike The more one delves into the complexities of faking as the authors of the chapters in this volume do so thoroughly and so well the more one will recognize that this seemingly specialized topic ties directly to more general issues in psychology One of these is test validity The bottom line question about any test score faked or not is whether it will predict the behaviors and outcomes that it is designed to predict As Johnson and Hogan point out in their chapter the behavior of someone faking a test is a subset of the behavior of the person in his or her entire life and the critical research question concerns the degree to which and manner in which behavior in one domain generalizes to behavior in other domains This observation illuminates the fact that the topic of faking is also a key part of understanding the relationship between personality and behavior The central goal of theoretical psychology is to understand why people do the things they do The central goal of applied psychology is to predict what someone will do in the future Both of these goals come together in the study of applicant faking Annual Report United States. Pension Bureau,1893 The Adjuster ,1900 Self Examination Thomas Arno MD FACC,2016-10-18 Dr Tom Arno will tell you without reservation that Marcus Welby is an inaccurate portrayal of the American physicians demeanor grossly inaccurate Understandably in the sixties we wanted to think doctors were calm and self assured but Welby never showed himself emotionally He was milquetoast toast a shoe salesman wearing a white coat Ben Casey was considerably more believable if only because Vince Edwards who played the title role was intense and brooding lending him an air of professional pique and borderline arrogance Truth be told ole Bens character is pretty close to the real thing with internship and residency when competition fierce and everyones jockeying for position with the higher ups Come to think of it maybe Ben was cranky from fatigue an occupational hazard especially during training years That is the truth and I know because I lived through it The American people need to be informed about the reality of medical school and beyond and how doctors are affected spiritually and physically personally and professionally No one sails through it unscathed no one is immune
