Stealing Education

LaToya Baldwin Clark

ABSTRACT

While most state constitutions include provisions that indicate a commitment to equal access to education within one state, that commitment remains unfulfilled. This Article shines a light on a practice that has been overlooked by those concerned about school district inequality, but that contributes to this incongruity: a phenomenon I call “stealing education.” A parent “steals” education when he falsifies a child’s residence to take advantage of a school district’s schools. Stealing education also refers to the legal infrastructure that allows for criminal or civil punishment.

In this Article, I argue that stealing education laws contribute to the apparatus of race-class opportunity hoarding, where a race-class-privileged community sequesters valuable resources to the exclusion of another race-class-subordinated community. I show how stealing education laws structure and perpetuate stratified school districts between residents and nonresidents and describe how many supporters of the laws use racist master narratives to justify the unequal distribution of rewards. The task of rationalizing the legal apparatus that denies equal educational opportunity to nonresidents is easier when supporters can appeal to “common sense” explicit racist narratives and dog whistles of inferior and undeserving Black people and Black children.

This Article focuses on one suburban-urban school district boundary that separates a majority-White school from a majority-Black school to highlight how some supporters of this structure justify this unequal system. I show how the subordinating effects of the stealing education apparatus mirror Brown-era race and class segregation. Stealing education is a perfectly legal mechanism by which to subordinate poor Black children, their families, and their communities.

The L Rev The Law Review Experience In American Legal Education:

The L. Rev Roy Gutterman,2003-06-30 This important work is a three part study that includes a legal and historical review of the unique place of law reviews in American legal education as well as the nature and stature of the reviews and the varying careers the top reviews have had in the 20th century Thirdly Gutterman has written of his own law review career with a mordant and fascinating eye on the extremes of legal opinion and behavior a deadline can bring The author also discusses the effects of the two major writing competitions specifically devoted to law review writing The study includes an extensive discussion of plagiarism and other abuses found in L Rev life Aspiration and Reality in Legal Education David Sandomierski,2020-02-24 Contrary to conventional narratives about legal education Aspiration and Reality in Legal Education reveals a widespread desire among law teachers to integrate both theory and practice into the education of versatile and civic minded lawyers Despite this stated desire however this aspiration is largely unrealized due to a host of intellectual and institutional factors that produce a profound gap between what professors believe about law and the ideas they communicate through their teaching Drawing on interviews with over sixty law professors in Canada David Sandomierski makes two important empirical discoveries in this book First he establishes that contrary to a dominant narrative in legal education that conceives of theory and practice as oppositional the vast majority of law professors consider theory to be vitally important in preparing better lawyers Second he uncovers a significant gap between the realist theoretical commitments held by a majority of professors and the formalist theories they almost uniformly convey through their teaching and conceptions of legal reasoning Understanding the intellectual and institutional factors that account for these tensions Sandomierski argues is essential for any meaningful project of legal education reform University of British Columbia Law Review University of British Columbia,2016 Michigan Law Review ,1928 The Global Evolution of Clinical Legal Education Richard J. Yale Law School and the Sixties Laura Kalman, 2006-05-18 The development of the modern Yale Law School is deeply intertwined with the story of a group of students in the 1960s who worked to unlock democratic visions of law and social change that they associated with Yale's past and with the social climate in which they lived During a charged moment in the history of the United States activists challenged senior professors and the resulting clash pitted young against old in a very human story By demanding changes in admissions curriculum grading and law practice Laura Kalman argues these students transformed Yale Law School and the future of American legal education Inspired by Yale's legal realists of the 1930s Yale law students between 1967 and 1970 spawned a movement that celebrated participatory democracy black power feminism and the counterculture After these students left the repercussions hobbled the school for years Senior law professors decided against retaining six junior scholars who had witnessed their conflict with the students in the early 1970s shifted the school's academic focus from sociology to economics and steered clear of critical legal studies Ironically explains Kalman students of the 1960s helped to create a culture of timidity until an imaginative dean in the 1980s tapped into and domesticated the spirit of the sixties helping to make Yale's current celebrity possible

Reimagining Advocacy Elizabeth C. Britt, 2018-05-17 Domestic violence accounts for approximately one fifth of all violent crime in the United States and is among the most difficult issues confronting professionals in the legal and criminal justice systems In this volume Elizabeth Britt argues that learning embodied advocacy a practice that results from an expanded understanding of expertise based on lived experience and adopting it in legal settings can directly and tangibly help victims of abuse Focusing on clinical legal education at the Domestic Violence Institute at the Northeastern University School of Law Britt takes a case study approach to illuminate how challenging the context aims and forms of advocacy traditionally embraced in the U.S. legal system produces better support for victims of domestic violence She analyzes a wide range of materials and practices including the pedagogy of law school training programs interviews with advocates and narratives written by students in the emergency department and looks closely at the forms of rhetorical education through which students assimilate advocacy practices By examining how students learn to listen actively to clients and to recognize that clients have the right and ability to make decisions for themselves Britt shows that rhetorical education can succeed in producing legal professionals with the inclination and capacity to engage others whose values and experiences diverge from their own By investigating the deep relationship between legal education and rhetorical education Reimagining Advocacy calls for conversations and action that will improve advocacy for others especially for victims of domestic violence seeking assistance from legal professionals Index to Legal Periodicals Eldon Revare James,1909 [Nomination of Stephen G. Olivas, 2020-04-30 This collection of ten essays originally published in 2006 to commemorate the 50th anniversary of an important but almost forgotten U S Supreme court case Hernandez v Texas 347 US 475 1954 is now available in trade paperback for the first time Involving Mexican Americans and jury selection this major case was published just before Brown v Board of Education in the 1954 Supreme Court reporter This landmark case the first to be tried by Mexican American lawyers before the US Supreme Court held that Mexican Americans were a discrete group for purposes of applying Equal Protection Although the case was about discriminatory state jury selection and trial practices it has been cited for many other civil rights precedents in the intervening 50 years Even so it has not been given the prominence it deserves in part because it lives in the shadow of the more compelling Brown v Board case There had been earlier efforts to diversify juries reaching back at least to the trial of Gregorio Cortez in 1901 and continuing with efforts by the legendary Oscar Zeta Acosta in Los Angeles in the 1960s Even as recently as 2005 there has been clear evidence that Latino participation in the Texas jury system is still substantially unrepresentative of the growing population But in a brief and shining moment in 1954 Mexican American lawyers prevailed in a system that accorded their community no legal status and no respect Through sheer tenacity brilliance and some luck they showed that it is possible to tilt against windmills and slay the dragon Edited and with an introduction by University of Houston law scholar Michael A Olivas Colored Men and Hombres Aqui is the first full length book on this case This volume contains the papers presented at the Hernandez at 50 conference that took place in 2004 at the University of Houston Law Center and also contains source materials trial briefs and a chronology of the case The Hastings Law Journal ,1988
