The Language Of Emotions Conceptualization Expression And Theoretical Foundation:

The Language of Emotions ... Niemeier-Dirven, René Dirven, 1997-01-01 Since the celebration of the 100th anniversary of Darwin's The Language of the Emotions in Man and Animals 1872 emotionology has become a respectable and even thriving research domain again The domain of human emotions is most important for mankind emotions being right in the center of our daily lives and interests A key role in the interdisciplinary scientific debate about emotions has now been accorded to the study of the language of emotions The present volume offers a new approach to the study of the language of emotions insofar as it presents theories from very different perspectives It encompasses studies by scholars from diverse disciplines such as linguistics sociology and psychology The topics of the contributions also cover a range of special fields of interest in four major sections In a first section a discussion of theoretical issues in the analysis of emotions is presented The conceptualization of emotions in specific cultures is analyzed in section 2 Section 3 takes a different inroad into the language of emotions by looking at developmental approaches giving evidence of the fact that the acquisition of the language of emotions is a social achievement that simultaneously determines our experience of these emotions Section 4 is devoted to emotional language in action that is the contributions focus upon different types of texts and analyze how emotions are referred to and expressed in discourse

The Semantics of Relationships R. Green,C.A. Bean,Sung Hyon Myaeng,2013-04-18 The genesis of this volume was the participation of the editors in an ACMISIGIR Association for Computing Machinery Special Interest Group on Information Retrieval workshop entitled Beyond Word Relations Hetzler 1997 This workshop examined a number of relationship types with significance for information retrieval beyond the conventional topic matching relationship From this shared participation came the idea for an edited volume on relationships with chapters to be solicited from researchers and practitioners throughout the world Ultimately one volume became two volumes The first volume Relationships in the Organization of Knowledge Bean Green 200 I examines the role of relationships in knowledge organization theory and practice with emphasis given to thesaural relationships and integration across systems languages cultures and disciplines This second volume examines relationships in a broader array of contexts The two volumes should be seen as companions each informing the other As with the companion volume we are especially grateful to the authors who willingly accepted challenges of space and time to produce chapters that summarize extensive bodies of research The value of the volume clearly resides in the quality of the individual chapters In naming this volume The Semantics of Relationships An Interdisciplinary Perspective we wanted to highlight the fact that relationships are not just empty connectives Relationships constitute important conceptual units and make significant contributions to meaning Affectivity in Interaction Elisabeth Reber,2012 How do participants display affectivity in social interaction Based on recordings of authentic everyday conversations and radio phone ins this study offers a fine grained analysis of how recipients of affect laden informings deploy sound objects i e interjections oh ooh and ah and paralinguistic signals whistle and clicks for responsive displays of affectivity Examining the use of such sound objects across a number of interactional activities including news telling troubles talk complaining assessments and repair the study provides evidence that the sound pattern and sequential placement of sound objects systematically contribute to their specific meaning making in interaction i e the management of sequence organisation and interactional relevancies e g affiliation Presenting an in depth analysis of a little researched area of language use from an interactional linguistic perspective the book will be of theoretical and methodological interest to an audience with a background in linguistics sociology and conversational studies Practices of Surprise in American Literature After Emerson Kate Stanley, 2018-07-19 Practices of Surprise in American Literature After Emerson locates a paradoxical question how does one prepare to be surprised at the heart of several major modernist texts Arguing that this paradox of perception gives rise to an American literary methodology this book dramatically reframes how practices of reading and writing evolved among modernist authors after Emerson Whereas Walter Benjamin defines modernity as a series of shocks inflicted from without Emerson offers a countervailing optic that regards life as a series of surprises unfolding from within While Benjaminian shock elicits intimidation and defensiveness Emersonian surprise fosters states of responsiveness and spontaneity whereby unexpected encounters become generative rather than enervating As a study of how such states of responsiveness were cultivated by a post Emerson tradition of writers and thinkers this project displaces longstanding models of modernist perception defined by shock's passive duress and proposes alternate models of reception that proceed from the active practice of surprise Distributed Language, Affective Dynamics, and the Human Ecology Volume I Paul J. Thibault, 2020-11-23 Language plays a central role in human life However the term language as defined in the language sciences of the 20th century and the traditions these have drawn on have arguably limited our thinking about what language is and does The two inter linked volumes of Thibault's study articulate crucially important aspects of an emerging new perspective shift on language the Distributed Language view that is now receiving more and more attention internationally Rejecting the classical view that the fundamental architecture of language can be localized as a number of inter related levels of formal linguistic organization that function as the coded inputs and outputs to each other the distributed language view argues that languaging behaviour is a bio cultural organisation of process that is embodied multimodal and integrated across multiple space time scales Thibault argues that we need to think of human languaging as the distinctively human mode of our becoming and being selves in the extended human ecology and the kinds of experiencing that this makes possible Paradoxically this also means thinking about language in non linguistic ways that break the grip of the conventional meta languages for thinking about human languaging Thibault's book grounds languaging in process theory languaging and the forms of experience it actualizes is always an event not a thing that we use In taking a distinctively interdisciplinary approach the book relates dialogical theories of human sense making to the distributed view of human cognition to recent thinking about distributed language to ecological psychology and to languaging as inter individual affective dynamics grounded in the subjective lives of selves In taking this approach the book considers the coordination of selves in social encounters the emergent forms of self reflexivity that characterise these encounters and the implications for how we think of and live our human sociality not as something that is mediated by overarching codes and systems but as emerging from the endogenous subjectivities of selves when they seek to coordinate with other selves and with the situations artefacts social institutions and technologies that populate the extended human ecology The two volumes aim to bring our understanding of human languaging closer to human embodiment experience and feeling while also showing how languaging enables humans to transcend local circumstances and thus to dialogue with cultural tradition Volume 1 focuses on the shorter timescales of bodily dynamics in languaging activity Volume II integrates the shorter timescales of body dynamics to the longer cultural historical timescales of the linguistic and cultural norms and patterns to which bodily dynamics are integrated

Experiential Constructions in Latin Chiara Fedriani, 2014-06-12 This volume is about the morphosyntactic encoding of feelings and emotions in Latin It offers a corpus based investigation of the Latin data benefiting from insights of the functional and typological approach to language Chiara Fedriani describes a patterned variation in Latin Experiential constructions also revisiting the so called impersonal constructions and shows how and why such a variation is at the root of diachronic change The data discussed in this book also show that Latin constitutes an interesting stage within a broader diachronic development since it retains some ancient Indo European features that gradually disappeared and went lost in the Romance languages

The Chinese HEART in a Cognitive Perspective Ning Yu, 2009-02-26 This book is a cognitive semantic study of the Chinese conceptualization of the heart traditionally seen as the central faculty of cognition The Chinese word xin which primarily denotes the heart organ covers the meanings of both heart and mind as understood in English which upholds a heart head dichotomy In contrast to the Western dualist view Chinese takes on a more holistic view that sees the heart as the center of both emotions and thought The contrast characterizes two cultural traditions that have developed different conceptualizations of person self and agent of cognition The concept of heart lies at the core of Chinese thought and medicine and its importance to Chinese culture is extensively manifested in the Chinese language Diachronically this book traces the roots of its conception in ancient Chinese philosophy and traditional Chinese medicine Along the synchronic dimension it not only makes a systematic analysis of conventionalized expressions that reflect the underlying cultural models and conceptualizations as well as underlying conceptual metaphors and metonymies but also attempts a textual analysis of an essay and a number of poems for their metaphoric and metonymic images and imports contributing to the cultural models and conceptualizations It also takes up a comparative perspective that sheds light on similarities and differences between Western and Chinese cultures in the understanding of the heart brain body mind self and person The book contributes to the understanding of the embodied nature of human cognition situated in its cultural context and the relationship between language culture and cognition

Troubled Talk Irit Kupferberg, David Green, 2011-07-11 How is meaning constructed discursively by participants in problem discourse To which discursive resources do they resort in order to accomplish their complicated tasks of problem presentation and negotiation of possible solutions To what extent are these resources related to the interactional and meaningful construction of problems and solutions Irit Kupferberg and David Green a discourse analyst and a clinical psychologist have explored naturally occurring media hotline and cyber troubled discourse in a quest for answers Inspired by a constructivist interpretive theoretical framework grounded in linguistic anthropology conversation analysis narrative inquiry and clinical psychology as well as their professional experience the authors put forward three novel claims that are illustrated by 70 attention holding examples First sufferers often present their troubles through detailed narrative discourse as well as succinct story internal tropes such as metaphors and similes discursive resources that constitute two interrelated versions of the troubled self Particularly interesting are the intriguing figurative constructions produced in acute emotional states or at crucial discursive junctions Second such figurative constructions often lubricate the interactive negotiation of solutions Third when the figurative and narrative resources of self construction are employed in the public arena they are used and sometimes abused by the media representatives depending on a plethora of contextual resources identified in this book

Surrounded by Bitterness Philip D. King, 2012-01-20 How did the ancient Hebrew writers understand their emotional experiences of being in distress Were their feelings similar to those of an English speaker who feels down or were there other embodied experiences they used to make sense of physical social and emotional distress This research establishes a cognitive linguistic methodology for addressing these questions and investigates the use of embodied experiences of VERTICALITY CONSTRAINT FORCE DARKNESS and BAD TASTE in the conventional language of classical Hebrew lament to understand and reason about situations of distress

Signs in the Dust Nathan Lyons, 2019-02-28 Modern thought is characterized by a dichotomy of meaningful culture and unmeaning nature Signs in the Dust uses medieval semiotics to develop a new theory of nature and culture that resists this familiar picture of things Through readings of Thomas Aquinas Nicholas of Cusa and John Poincaré John of St Thomas it offers a semiotic analysis of human culture in both its anthropological breadth as an enterprise of creaturely sign making and its theological height as a finite participation in the Trinity which can be understood as an absolute cultural nature Signs in the Dust then extends this account of human culture backwards into the natural depth of biological and physical nature It puts the biosemiotics of its medieval sources along with Félix Ravaisson's philosophy of habit into dialogue with the Extended Evolutionary Synthesis that is emerging in contemporary biology to show how all living things participate in semiosis so that that a cultural dimension is present through the whole order of nature and the whole of natural history It also retrieves Aquinas doctrine of intentions in the medium to show how signification can be attributed in a diminished way to even inanimate nature with the ontological implication that being as such should be reconceived in semiotic terms The phenomena of human culture are therefore to be understood not as breaks with a meaningless nature but instead as heightenings and deepenings of natural movements of meaning that long precede and far exceed us Against the modern divorce of nature and culture Signs in the Dust argues that culture is natural and nature is cultural through and through
