The Spectacle of Japanese American Trauma Emily Roxworthy, 2008-07-31 In The Spectacle of Japanese American Trauma Emily Roxworthy contests the notion that the U S government's internment policies during World War II had little impact on the postwar lives of most Japanese Americans. After the curtain was lowered on the war following the bombings of Hiroshima and Nagasaki, many Americans behaved as if the theatre of war had ended and life could return to normal. Roxworthy demonstrates that this theatrical logic of segregating the real from the staged, the authentic experience from the political display, grew out of the manner in which internment was agitated for and instituted by the U S government and media. During the war, Japanese Americans struggled to define themselves within the web of this theatrical logic, and they continue to reenact this trauma in public and private to this day. The political spectacles staged by the FBI and the American mass media were heir to a theatricalizing discourse that can be traced back to Commodore Matthew Perry's opening of Japan in 1853. Westerners, particularly Americans, drew upon it to orientalize, disempower, demonize, and conquer those of Japanese descent who were characterized as natural born actors who could not be trusted. Roxworthy provides the first detailed reconstruction of the FBI's raids on Japanese American communities, which relied on this discourse to justify their highly choreographed searches, seizures, and arrests. Her book also makes clear how wartime newspapers, particularly those of the notoriously anti-Asian Hearst Press, melodramatically framed the evacuation and internment so as to discourage white Americans from sympathizing with their former neighbors of Japanese descent. Roxworthy juxtaposes her analysis of these political spectacles with the first inclusive look at cultural performances staged by issei and nisei first and second generation Japanese Americans at two of the most prominent relocation centers, California's Manzanar and Tule Lake. The camp performances enlarge our understanding of the impulse to create art under oppressive conditions. Taken together, wartime political spectacles and the performative attempts at resistance by internees demonstrate the logic of racial performativity that underwrites American national identity. The Spectacle of Japanese American Trauma details the complex formula by which racial performativity proved to be a force for both oppression and resistance during World War II.

The Literature of Japanese American Incarceration Frank Abe, Floyd Cheung, 2024-05-14 An essential volume. Hua Hsu, The New Yorker. The collective voice of Japanese Americans defined by a specific moment in time: the four years of World War II during which the US government expelled resident aliens and its own citizens from their homes and imprisoned 125,000 of them in American concentration camps based solely upon the race they shared with a wartime enemy. A Penguin Classic. This anthology presents a new vision that recovers and reframes the literature produced by the people targeted by the actions of President Franklin D. Roosevelt and Congress to deny Americans of Japanese ancestry any individual hearings or other due process after the Japanese attack at Pearl Harbor. From nearly seventy selections of fiction, poetry, essays, memoirs, and letters emerges a shared story of the struggle to retain personal integrity in the face of increasing dehumanization, all anchored by the key government documents that incite the action The selections favor the pointed over the poignant and the unknown over the familiar with several new translations among previously unseen works that have been long overlooked on the shelf buried in the archives or languished unread in the Japanese language The writings are presented chronologically so that readers can trace the continuum of events as the incarcerated experienced it The contributors span incarcerated their children born in or soon after the camps and their descendants who reflect on the long term consequences of mass incarceration for themselves and the nation Many of the voices are those of protest Some are those of accommodation All are authentic Together they form an epic narrative with a singular vision of America's past one with disturbing resonances with the American present

Community Newspapers and the Japanese-American Incarceration Camps Ronald Bishop,2015-06-03 Though much has been said about Japanese American incarceration camps little attention is paid to the community newspapers closest to the camps and how they constructed the identities and lives of the occupants inside Dependent on government and military officials for information these journalists rarely wrote about the violation of the evacuees civil rights Instead they concentrated on the economic impact the camps and the evacuees who would replace workers off to enlist in the military and work for defense contractors would have on the areas they covered Newspapers like the Cody Enterprise and Powell Tribune in Wyoming the Lamar Daily News and the Casa Grande Dispatch regularly published overly optimistic updates on the progress of construction the size of the contractor payrolls and the amount of materials used to build the camps Ronald Bishop and his coauthors reveal how journalists positioned the incarceration camps as a potential economic boon and how evacuees were framed as another community group there to contribute to the region s economic well being Community Newspapers and the Japanese American Incarceration Camps examines the rhetoric and journalistic approach of the local papers and how they informed the communities just outside their walls This book will appeal to scholars of history and journalism     Bulletin of the American Geographical Society of New York ,1895     Ants of the American Museum Congo Expedition William Morton Wheeler,1922     My Boy in Khaki Della Thompson Lutes,1918     American Lumberman ,1899
