Beacons in the Landscape Ian Brown, 2009-07-20

Of all Britain's great archaeological monuments the Iron Age hillforts have arguably had the most profound impact on the landscape if only because there are so many yet we know very little about them Were they recognised as being something special by those who created them or is the hillfort purely an archaeologists construct How were they constructed who lived in them and to what uses were they put This book which is richly illustrated with photography of sites throughout England and Wales addresses these and many other questions After discussing the difficult issue of definition and the great excavations on which our knowledge is based Ian Brown investigates in turn hillforts origins their architecture and the role they played in Iron Age society He also discusses the latest theories about their location social significance and chronology The book provides a valuable synthesis of the rich vein of research carried out in Britain on hillforts over the last thirty years Hillforts great variability poses many problems and this book should help guide both the specialist and non specialist alike though the complex literature Furthermore it has an important conservation objective Land use in the modern era has not been kind to these monuments with a significant number either disfigured or lost Public consciousness of their importance needs raising if their management is to be improved and their future assured

On Landscapes Susan Herrington,2013-12-19 There is no escaping landscape it s everywhere and part of everyone s life Landscapes have received much less attention in aesthetics than those arts we can choose to ignore such as painting or music but they can tell us a lot about the ethical and aesthetic values of the societies that produce them Drawing on examples from a wide range of landscapes from around the world and throughout history Susan Herrington considers the ways landscapes can affect our emotions our imaginations and our understanding of the passage of time On Landscapes reveals the design work involved in even the most naturalistic of landscapes and the ways in which contemporary landscapes are turning the challenges of the industrial past into opportunities for the future Inviting us to thoughtfully see and experience the landscapes that we encounter in our daily lives On Landscapes demonstrates that art is all around us

Interpreting Landscapes Christopher Tilley, 2016-06-03 Examines role of landscape in phenomenological study of ancient Britain

The Medieval English Landscape, 1000-1540 Graeme J. White, 2012-11-08 A scholarly up to date and readable survey of the shaping of the medieval English landscape

Handbook of Landscape Archaeology Bruno David, Julian Thomas, 2016-06-03 Over the past three decades landscape has become an umbrella term to describe many different strands of archaeology From the processualist study of settlement patterns to the phenomenologist s experience of the natural world from human impact on past environments to the environment s impact on human thought action and interaction the term has been used In this volume for the first time over 80 archaeologists from three continents attempt a comprehensive definition of the ideas and practices of landscape archaeology covering the theoretical and the practical the research and conservation and encasing the term in a global framework As a basic reference volume for landscape archaeology this volume will be the benchmark for decades to come All royalties on this Handbook are donated to the World Archaeological Congress

Interpreting the Landscape Michael Aston, 2002-09-11 Most places in Britain have had a local history written about them Up until this century these histories have addressed more parochial issues such as the life of the manor rather than explaining the features and changes in the landscape in a factual manner Much of what is visible today in Britain s landscape is the result of a chain of social and natural processes and can be interpreted through fieldwork as well as from old maps and documents Michael Aston uses a wide range of source material to study the complex and dynamic history of the countryside illustrating his points with aerial photographs maps plans and charts He shows how to understand the surviving remains as well as offering his own explanations for how our landscape has evolved

Stonehenge Landscapes Sally Exon, Vincent L. Gaffney, Ann Woodward, Ron Yorston, 2000 Stonehenge Landscapes is the largest digital analysis of the archaeological landscape and monuments of Stonehenge ever attempted The study uses data from more than 1200 monuments The contents of the Stonehenge barrows are collated for the first time and presented in a series of appendices The result of this endeavour is a major phenomenological study of the development of the Stonehenge landscape from the Mesolithic to the Early Bronze Age The authors explain how the landscape emerged over time the developing relationships between the public monuments and how these monuments created new spaces for social action in prehistory The way monuments were used and perceived is discussed and the results are demonstrated through interactive software which displays GIS data animations of movement along monuments and through the landscape as well as 3 dimensional views of the landscape panoramic photographs and videos Uniquely the reader can access all the data through their web browser permitting them to perform their own studies and produce their own reading of the landscape of Stonehenge Stonehenge Landscapes is a radical step forward in archaeological publishing integrating computing and phenomenological study permitting new insights into a well known landscape and allowing the reader to participate in the study and interpretation of the results The Stonehenge Landscapes CD includes a software program to display various data sets The copyright owner of this program is Ronald Yorston Archaeopress holds a licence to distribute the program as part of the electronic version of Stonehenge Landscapes

Evolution of a Community: The Colonisation of a Clay Inland

Landscape Samantha Paul, John Hunt, 2015-02-26 Chronologically documents the colonisation of a clay inland location north west of Cambridge at the village of Longstanton and outlines how it was not an area on the periphery of activity but part of a fully occupied landscape extending back into the Mesolithic period

"Landscapes of Lordship" Robert Liddiard, 2000 In this detailed study Liddiard examines the processes and factors which determined the number distribution and location of castles and considers how a castle's construction altered its environment Using structures such as Castle Acre Castle Rising Middleton and Horsford as examples Liddiard suggests that the location of most of Norfolk's castles was shaped by social factors and not military considerations Castles were primarily intended to act as residences even though they were designed to dramatically dominate the landscape

Hierophantic Landscapes Richard Leviton, 2011-09-26 The Earth is poised to make a great disclosure Its a hierophant But whats a hierophant A person who reveals the holy light But it can also be a landscape or a planet And whats the holy light It is the structure of reality and consciousness a map of the heavenly realms the engineering blueprint of Creation Some people call this imminent disclosure the Apocalypse and run for cover But that is mistaken Apocalypse means the revelation of the divine revelation It means the end of our picture of the world as we know it The world itself will be fine even better than fine Splendid Illumined The Architect of reality lays down His cards face up and you see the whole deck Here is the truth of yourself and the Earth How will this disclosure work What we call sacred sites and holy landscapes will start revealing themselves in full to us in all their geomantic and visionary richness Thats the inner patterning of their design their arrays of Light temples and subtle palaces primed for our visionary adventures and edification The Earth needs us to have these adventures and visions because thats how we keep the planet healthy

Hierophantic Landscapes visits five landscapes from Norway and England to California and Mexico providing firsthand reports on the visions and adventures of a small band of geomancers as they seek to unravel the mysteries of the Earth Maybe not such a small band because along the way we encounter angels landscape devas Nature Spirits and otherworldly mentors and revel in vistas of the ancient past of the Earth when that revelation was as fresh as a sunrise as it will soon be again

The Landscape Archaeology of Anglo-Saxon England N. J. Higham, Martin J. Ryan, 2010 The Anglo Saxon period was crucial to the development of the English landscape but is rarely studied The essays here provide radical new interpretations of its development Traditional opinion has perceived the Anglo Saxons as creating an entirely new landscape from scratch in the fifth and sixth centuries AD cutting down woodland and bringing with them the practice of open field agriculture and establishing villages Whilst recent scholarship has proved this simplistic picture wanting it has also raised many questions about the nature of landscape development at the time the changing nature of systems of land management and strategies for settlement. The papers here seek to shed new light on these complex issues. Taking a variety of different approaches and with topics ranging from the impact of coppicing to medieval field systems from the representation of the landscape in manuscripts to cereal production and the type of bread the population preferred, they offer striking new approaches to the central issues of landscape change across the seven centuries of Anglo Saxon England, a period surely foundational to the rural landscape of today. NICHOLAS J HIGHAM is Professor of Early Medieval and Landscape History at the University of Manchester. MARTIN J RYAN lectures in Medieval History at the University of Manchester. Estate Landscapes : Design, Improvement and Power in the Post-medieval Landscape Jonathan Finch, Katherine Giles, 2007. An exciting study of the social and landscape phenomena of the Estate Landscape. In recent years the post medieval landscape has attracted new interest from archaeologists, historians and geographers concerned to understand the development of the historic environment. One of the key structuring elements within these landscapes from the sixteenth century until the aftermath of the Second World War was undoubtedly the landed estate. However it was not until the late nineteenth century that any systematic attempt to quantify the presence of these estates was undertaken, prompted by the move to democratic reform and the persistent link between political power and landed wealth. Yet the importance of the landed estate in structuring power, social relationships and both agricultural and industrial production was not limited to the UK. From the eighteenth century the link between the UK estates and patterns of landholding and exploitation in the colonies became increasingly complex and recursive. This volume explores the relationships between the form and structure of British and Colonial estate landscapes, their agricultural management and the political structures and social relationships they reproduced. The articles address themes as diverse as the creation and development of the agrarian landscape, improvement, ornamental landscapes and gardens and estate architecture. Overall it highlights the wealth and diversity of existing scholarship and suggests new directions for post medieval archaeology in this dynamic area of research.
