David Livingstone 1813-73 was a Scottish missionary and medical doctor who explored much of the interior of Africa Livingstone's most famous expedition was in 1866-73 when he traversed much of central Africa in an attempt to find the source of the Nile This book contains the daily journals that Livingstone kept on this expedition from his first entry on January 28 1866 when he arrived at Zanzibar in present day Tanzania to his last on April 27 1873 four days before he died from malaria and dysentery in a village near Lake Bangweulu in present day Zambia In his more than seven year journey Livingstone was assisted by friendly African chiefs and at times by Arab slave traders whose activities he abhorred His journals contain detailed observations on the people plants animals topography and climate of central Africa as well as on the slave trade The journals also provide Livingstone's account of his meeting with Henry Morton Stanley in the fall of 1871 Stanley had been sent by the New York Herald to find the explorer but was unable to convince him to return to England Livingstone's last entry reads Knocked up quite and remain recover sent to buy milch goats We are on the banks of the

Molilamo After Livingstone's death his African servants Susi and Chuma saved the journals for transport to England where they were edited and published by Livingstone's friend Horace Waller The Last Journals of David Livingstone, in Central Africa, from 1865 to His Death, Volume I David Livingstone, 2023-08-22 In The Last Journals of David Livingstone in Central Africa from 1865 to His Death Volume I Livingstone's meticulous observations provide a profound insight into the sociopolitical landscape of Central Africa during the late 19th century. Crafted in an epistolary style, this collection captures Livingstone's unyielding spirit and his unwavering commitment to explore uncharted territories even in the face of dire circumstances. The narrative reflects not only his scientific inquiries and geographic discoveries but also poignant reflections on the impact of colonialism and the human condition, illustrating his dual role as both a scientist and a compassionate advocate for the African people. David Livingstone was a Scottish missionary and explorer whose life was marked by devotion to both God and the exploration of Africa's interior. His experiences navigating through treacherous terrains and encountering diverse cultures undoubtedly informed the observations in his journals. Livingstone's tireless mission to abolish slavery and promote trade, coupled with his deep faith, motivated his scholarly pursuits and ultimately shaped the narrative of his later journals leading up to his death in 1873. This volume is an invaluable resource for scholars, historians, and readers interested in African history and exploration. It not only serves as a testament to Livingstone's heroism but also opens a window into the complexity of a continent on the brink of transformation. Readers are invited to delve into Livingstone's thoughts and experiences that challenge our understanding of exploration in the context of 19th-century imperialism. Last Journals of David Livingstone, in Central Africa, 1874 Waller Horace, 1901
