The Miners of Windber Mildred Allen Beik, 1996-09-15 In 1897 the Berwind White Coal Mining Company founded Windber as a company town for its miners in the bituminous coal country of Pennsylvania The Miners of Windber chronicles the coming of unionization to Windber from the 1890s when thousands of new immigrants flooded Pennsylvania in search of work through the New Deal era of the 1930s when the miners rights to organize join the United Mine Workers of America and bargain collectively were recognized after years of bitter struggle Mildred Allen Beik a Windber native whose father entered the coal mines at age eleven in 1914 explores the struggle of miners and their families against the company whose repressive policies encroached on every part of their lives That Windber s population represented twenty five different nationalities including Slovaks Hungarians Poles Italians and Carpatho Russians was a potential obstacle to the solidarity of miners Beik however shows how the immigrants overcame ethnic fragmentation by banding together as a class to unionize the mines Work family church fraternal societies and civic institutions all proved critical as men and women alike adapted to new working conditions and to a new culture Circumstance if not principle forced miners to embrace cultural pluralism in their fight for greater democracy reforms of capitalism and an inclusive working class definition of what it meant to be an American. Beik draws on a wide variety of sources including oral histories gathered from thirty five of the oldest living immigrants in Windber, foreign language newspapers, fraternal society collections, church manuscripts, public documents, union records, and census materials. The struggles of Windber's diverse working class undeniably mirror the efforts of working people everywhere to democratize the undemocratic America they knew. Their history suggests some of the possibilities and limitations, strengths and weaknesses of worker protest in the early twentieth century.
