Some Effects of Participative Budgeting on Managerial Behavior Robert J. Swieringa, Robert H. Moncur, 1975

Behavioral Management Accounting Ahmed Riahi-Belkaoui, 2001-10-30 Producers and users of management accounting information are confronted with crucial behavioral phenomena factors that can affect the communication of this information and its use Riahi Belkaoui shows what these factors and phenomena are and how to understand and cope with them In doing so he shows how producers and users together can improve the efficiency of management accounting itself He explains the judgment process in management accounting identifies and explains the major behavioral phenomena and then provides ways to use them for the firm's benefit Thoughtful and comprehensive his book is important reading for executive decision makers in almost all organizations throughout the public and private sectors Handbook of Management Accounting Research Christopher S. Chapman, Anthony G. Hopwood, Michael D. Shields, 2006-12-08 Volume one of the Handbooks of Management Accounting Research sets the context for both Handbooks with three chapters outlining the historical development of management accounting as a discipline and as a practice in three broad geographic settings The bulk of the first volume then draws together a series of contributions that analyse the scholarly literature in terms of distinct intellectual and theoretical social science perspectives The volume includes a chapter which looks at work informed by psychology as a base discipline The volume also includes a set of chapters that seek to evaluate and explain issues of research method for the different approaches to research found within management accounting Special pricing available if purchased as a set with Volume 2 Documents the scholarly management accounting literature Publishing both in print and online through Science Direct International in scope Readings in Accounting for Management Control David Otley and Kenneth Merchant Clive Emmanuel, 2013-12-19 This collection contains the main journal articles necessary to complement and support the established second edition of Accounting for Management Control The success of the text stems from the authors commitment to examining management accounting in an organizational and behavioural context Only in this way can the contribution to the management control system be evaluated The articles contained in this volume follow the structure and content of the main book providing deeper insights into those fundamental issues of accounting control systems design and indicating the direction of future developments in research The collection contains articles with a variety of perspectives and range from as early as the 1950s through to the present The inclusion of all these papers in one volume gives the student easier access to the body of work upon which the main text is based A teacher's manual to be used in conjunction with the main text is also available This book should be of interest to senior undergraduate students of accounting and finance and university and polytechnic libraries Participative Budgeting as a Communication Process David James Harr, 1978 The purpose of this study is to develop a general model of participative budgeting and to initiate a systematic exploration of its operation and effects The general model is developed to operate in any organizational setting

However Hopwood notes that both managers and employees influence and are influenced by the budget and the assumptions underlying the rationale for participative budgeting suggest a broad range of interwoven questions Thus the initial exploration of the model operation concerns only the upper levels of management and the investigation of its effects concern only the questions about the linkage between subordinate manager participation in the budgeting process and more favorable attitudes toward the budget

Organizational Determinants of Budgetary Influence and Involvement Noah P. Barsky, 2013-10-11 Drawing on network theory from the organizational sociology literature this book examines issues related to which organizational factors determine how employees influence the budgeting process Data were collected from managers who participate in the budgeting process at a major apparel manufacturer Social network analysis was employed to measure how the structure of the network of managers affects the budgeting process The results show that budgetary influence is structurally determined and resides with managers holding central positions in the organizational network Thus while formal procedures determine which employees are involved in budgeting activities only centrally positioned managers actually influence budgetary outcomes The findings indicate that influence not involvement is the key to empowerment in the budgeting process This research suggests that researchers and practitioners should be aware of an organization's social structure when examining a participative budgeting process The difference between formal designs and actual influence is indicative of a rhetoric reality gap which can impair the effectiveness of management control systems
