do and don't correspond and how these discrepancies have been exploited. How can we make sense of globally circulating art without forgoing the interpretive resources of the local national or regional context? Teh examines the work of artists who straddle the local and the global becoming willing agents of assimilation yet resisting homogenization. He describes the transition from an artistic subjectivity couched in terms of national community to a more qualified postnational one against the backdrop of the singular but waning sovereignty of the Thai monarchy and sustained political and economic turmoil. Among the national currencies of Thai art that Teh identifies are an agricultural symbology, a Siamese poetics of distance and itinerancy and Hindu Buddhist conceptions of charismatic power. Each of these currencies has been converted to a legal tender in global art signifying sustainability utopia the conceptual and the relational but what is lost and what may be gained in such exchanges.

Buddhist Art in Thailand Charuwan Chareonla, 2024-10-06 Thailand is one of the greatest most important Buddhist centres of the world. Slightly more than 90 percent of the Thai population are Buddhists. Since ancient times the Thais have subscribed to the Hinayana or Theravada sect of Buddhism which teaches that salvation can be earned only through individual efforts. This sect of Buddhism became the major creed and religious faith of the Thai people.
