

First Blood in Saunders Field

The Battle of the Wilderness

Fredericksburg and Spotsylvania
National Military Park

"The regiment melted away like snow. Men disappeared as if the earth had swallowed them."

—Lincoln County Parks
Book, New York edition

Shortly after noon on May 5, the 140th New York burst from the woods to your right rear—the first regiment to advance against the Confederates here in Saunders Field.

Undaunted by a devastating Confederate fire, the 529 New Yorkers sprang across the field and spilled the Confederates along the woodland behind you. But supporting units, caught in the tangled woods north of the field, could not keep pace. Confederate fire took the 140th's exposed right flank. For perhaps 30 minutes the 140th New York clung to its foothold in the woods. Then, with nearly half its men shot or captured, the regiment retreated.

The advance of the 140th New York was but the first bloodletting in what would be two days of savage fighting in and around Saunders Field.
