Social Challenge Of Aging:

The Social Challenge of Ageing David Hobman, 2024-05-10 Although all recorded societies have contained a few people of extreme old age they have been the exception rather than the rule The possibility of one fifth of the total population in retirement from active employment would have been unthinkable at the beginning of the twentieth century and even social planning in the 1970s had made no adequate provision for a society in which one in every twenty five people would be over seventy five and one in every hundred over eighty five within less than a decade In Great Britain in the 1970s however and in many industrialised societies this was now a reality and vast resources would need to be directed towards the support care and treatment of the aged Whilst a growing body of knowledge based upon biological and clinical studies of the ageing process had been accumulated in recent years only a modest investment had been made in social gerontology Originally published in 1978 this book provided a multi disciplinary study of the process of ageing for those in the caring professions as well as for planners and architects whose decisions and designs affected the lives of the elderly It is divided into three parts the first provides a sociological demographic and cultural background to the place of old people in eastern and western societies The second explores the relationship which exists or should exist between a number of professional disciplines and part three considers an interdisciplinary model in practice Today it can be read in its historical context Population

Ageing and Its Challenges to Social Policy R. Schoenmaeckers, Irena Kotowska, Council of Europe. Directorate General III--Social Cohesion, 2005-01-01 This publication examines the demographic challenges posed by population ageing trends and the policy implications in relation to health employment public expenditure and social relationships It contains two reports prepared for the European Population Conference held in Strasbourg in April 2005 Challenges of Biological

Aging Edward J. Masoro, PhD, 1999-07-16 This volume provides the non biologist an overview of what is known about the physiological bases of aging The author examines the many basic theories and emerging hypotheses underlying the molecular cellular and systemic processes involved in senescence He addresses the normal physiological changes that characterize the aging phenotype and also considers the role of many age associated diseases in growing older Masoro synthesizes a much needed unified theory of biological aging to which explains how and why the body grows into the condition we call old This text is intended for gerontology students in training as well as for human physiologists interested in gerontology Social Work with the Aging Louis Lowy, 1985 Issues in Aging Mark Novak, 2018-02-02 Issues in

Aging combines social psychological biological and philosophical perspectives to present a multifaceted picture of aging Novak illustrates both the problems and the opportunities that accompany older age This text helps students understand the tremendous variability in aging and introduces them to careers working with older adults This new edition reflects the continued changes in the way we age The fourth edition has been updated to include emerging issues in aging These include the prevalence of HIV AIDs in later life current research on mental potential in old age the creation of age friendly cities and new options for end of life care Each chapter begins with a set of learning objectives to guide students in their reading and concludes with a list of main points questions for discussion or study suggested readings and relevant web sites to consult Each chapter also includes up to date charts and graphs as well as key terms to help students understand the issues presented Break out boxes reveal the human side of aging through the stories of individuals in real life and in the media
