interpretation of the main trends in education in both countries in the first half of the nineteenth century They then put forward an alternative approach derived from Weber which links educational change with social conflict This theory of domination and assertion of groups competing for control over formal instruction before the emergence of the state system is applied to England and France in this period The main part of the book is devoted to a more detailed analysis of the competing groups in both countries and of their ideologies which served as blueprints for educational reform

Institutions and Social Conflict Jack Knight,1992-10-30 A thorough critique of theories of institutional change followed by the development of a new theory emphasising the role of distributional conflict in the emergence of social institutions

Social Conflict, Economic Development and Extractive Industry Anthony Bebbington,2011-09-27 The extraction of minerals oil and gas has a long and ambiguous history in development processes in North America Europe Latin America and Australasia Extraction has yielded wealth regional identities and in some cases capital for industrialization In other cases its main heritages have been social conflict environmental damage and underperforming national economies As the extractive economy has entered another boom period over the last decade not least in Latin America the countries in which this boom is occurring are challenged to interpret this ambiguity Will the extractive industry yield for them economic development or will its main gifts be ones of conflict degradation and unequal forms of growth This book speaks directly to this question and to the different ways in which Latin American countries are responding to the challenge of extractive industry The contributors are a mixture of geographers economists political scientists development experts and anthropologists who all draw on sustained field work in the region By digging deep into both national and local experiences with extractive industry they demonstrate the ways in which it transforms economies societies politics and environments They pay particular attention to the social conflict that extraction consistently produces and they ask how far this conflict might usher in political and institutional changes that could lead to a more productive relationship between extraction and development They also ask whether the existence of left of centre governments in the region changes the relationships between extractive industry and development The book makes clear the immense difficulties that countries and regional societies face in harnessing extractive industry for the collective good For the most part the findings question the wisdom of the development model that many countries in the region have taken up and which emphasises the productive roles of mining and hydrocarbon industries The book should be of interest to students and researchers of Development Studies Geography Politics and Political Economy as well as Anthropology

How Our Love of Dogs Creates Social Conflict James K. Beggan, 2022-09-07 For the last twenty thousand years dogs and people have shared a unique bond in the animal kingdom In How Our Love of Dogs Creates Social Conflict James K Beggan uses symbolic interaction to examine the meaning that dogs have for people as friends and family members Although many animal rights advocates express dismay over the subordinate status ownership implies the author argues that ownership creates a powerful psychological connection that makes it easier for people to imbue dogs with humanlike characteristics Beggan outlines how dogs sensitivity to inequity in combination with a high degree of cognitive capacity makes it possible for dogs to be active agents in creating conflict between people The author s analysis of social conflict between people over their dogs connects to profound philosophical concepts about the nature of mind the relationship between humans and animals and the moral responsibility human beings have to dogs and other animals
