Jeff Coulter

Social Construction Of Mind:

The Social Construction of Mind Jeff Coulter, 1987-09-29 This book provides an original and provocative combination of ethnomethodological analysis and the concepts of linguistic philosophy with a breadth and clarity unusual in this field of writing. It is designed to be read by sociologists, psychologists and philosophers and concerns itself with the contributions of Wittgenstein defending the claim for his relevance to the human sciences. However, this book goes some way beyond the usual limitations of such interdisciplinary works by outlining some empirical applications of ideas derived from the Wittgenstein tradition.

Social Constructionism Andy Lock, Tom Strong, 2010-03-25 Social Constructionism Sources and Stirrings in Theory and Practice offers an introduction to the different theorists and schools of thought that have contributed to the development of contemporary social constructionist ideas, charting a course through the ideas that underpin the discipline. From the New Science of Vico in the 18th century through to Marxist writers, ethnomethodologists and Wittgenstein ideas as to how socio-cultural processes provide the resources that make us human are traced to the present day. Despite constructionists often being criticised as relativists, activists and anti-establishment and for making no concrete contributions, their ideas are now being adopted by practically oriented disciplines such as management consultancy, advertising, therapy, education and nursing. Andy Lock and Tom Strong aim to provoke a wider grasp of an alternative history and tradition that has developed alongside the one emphasised in traditional histories of the social sciences.

The Social Construction of Virtue George W. Noblit, Van O. Dempsey, Belmira Oliveira Bueno, 1996-09-26 Examines how schools function as agents and transmitters of moral life in communities.

An Invitation to Social Construction Kenneth J. Gergen, 1999-12-06 In An Invitation to Social Construction Kenneth Gergen charts the background to the social constructionist movement and outlines the major debates, topics and issues.

The Social Construction of Climate Change Mary E. Pettenger, 2016-02-24 Individuals, international organizations and states are calling for the world to confront climate change. Efforts such as the Kyoto Protocol have produced intractable disputes and are deemed inadequate. This volume adopts two constructivist perspectives: norm-centred and discourse to explore the social construction of climate change from a broad theoretical level to particular cases. The contributors contend that climate change must be understood from the context of social settings and that we ignore at our peril how power and knowledge structures are generated. They offer a greater understanding of why current efforts to mitigate climate change have failed and provide academics and policy makers with a new understanding of this important topic.

The Mind As a Scientific Object Christina E. Erneling, David M. Johnson, 2005-01-13 What holds together the various fields that are supposed to constitute the general intellectual discipline that people now call cognitive science? In this book Erneling and Johnson identify two problems with defining this discipline. First, some theorists identify the common subject matter as the mind, but scientists and philosophers have not been able to agree on any single satisfactory answer to the question of what the mind is.

Second those who speculate about the general characteristics that belong to cognitive science tend to assume that all the particular fields falling under the rubric psychology linguistics biology and son on are of roughly equal value in their ability to shed light on the nature of mind This book argues that all the cognitive science disciplines are not equally able to provide answers to ontological questions about the mind but rather that only neurophysiology and cultural psychology are suited to answer these questions However since the cultural account of mind has long been ignored in favor of the neurophysiological account Erneling and Johnson bring together contributions that focus especially on different versions of the cultural account of the mind

Social Constructionism Vivien Burr, 2015-04-21 Now in its third edition this successful book introduces students to the area of social science theory and research known as social constructionism Using a variety of examples from everyday experience and from existing research in areas such as personality sexuality and health it clearly explains the basic theoretical assumptions of social constructionism Key debates such as the nature and status of knowledge truth reality and the self are given in depth analysis in an accessible style Drawing on a range of empirical studies the book clearly defines the various different approaches to social constructionist research and explores the theoretical and practical issues involved While the text is broadly sympathetic to social constructionism it also adopts a critical perspective to the material addressing its weaknesses and in the final chapter subjecting the theory itself to a more extensive critique New to this edition Extended coverage of the relationship between mainstream psychology and social constructionism and how the two fields can engage with each other An exploration of the rise and popularity of neuroscience and the challenge it poses to social constructionism New material on the field of psychosocial studies Updated coverage of existing key issues such as age and sexuality and inclusion of more recently emerging issues e g status and role of affect Updated discussion of key social constructionist contributors with revised references Updated chapter on research methods including more on narrative and critical narrative analysis and personal construct methods The third edition of Social Constructionism extends and updates the material covered in previous editions and will be an invaluable and informative resource for undergraduate and postgraduate students across the social and behavioural sciences

Social Constructionism in Vocational Psychology and Career

Development Peter McIlveen, Donna Schultheiss, 2012-12-23 The contemporary world of work makes demands upon the field of career development and vocational psychology to ensure that theories and practices retain their relevance amidst the complexity of work and learning in people s lives Social Constructionism is the emerging paradigm that can reformulate theories and practices of career development that have come before Social Constructionism opens new perspectives and raises questions about phenomena that have captured the imagination of scholars and practitioners for a century In this fourth book in the Sense Career Development Series a host of international authors open the window of Social Constructionism to reveal the challenges that lay ahead in the next generation of research and practice This little book is ideal for the graduate scholar researcher and seriously curious practitioner who seek to understand Social Constructionism
