B. A. Asiedu, 2019-11-20 Paul the apostle and historian Flavius Josephus spent considerable parts of their careers away from Jerusalem They cultivated Roman audiences under very different circumstances Paul with his Letter to the Romans and Josephus with the writings he produced in Rome after the Jewish War Curiously Paul's last visit to Jerusalem coincided with Josephus s entry into public life a period about which Josephus is deliberately silent In Paul and His Letters Thinking with Josephus F B A Asiedu selects themes from Josephus s life to explore Paul s letters and biography that contribute to his uniqueness in Jewish history He highlights for example the need to read Romans 9 11 as aporetic discourse to appreciate Paul as an existential thinker Asiedu considers among other things the authenticity of Paul s letters and offers an alternative to the prevailing scholarly consensus He also maintains that the Pauline collection in the New Testament first took shape in the house of Gaius in Corinth where Paul composed his Letter to the Romans Asiedu also suggests that the traditional view that Luke the physician wrote the Acts of the Apostles is probably a mistake He argues that Titus the Greek the coworker and friend of Barnabas and Paul most likely authored it The Apostle Paul Marion L. Soards, 1987 This dynamic new consideration of Paul addresses the three basic subjects that make up Pauline studies Paul s life letters and theology and argues that these elements must be treated together since to do otherwise risks distorting one or more of the arguments
