Mark Rhodes

Stand Up And Talk To 1000 People:

Crowning the Nice Girl Christine R. Yano, 2006-06-30 After World War II Japanese Americans in Hawaii sought to carve a positive niche of public citizenship in the community. In 1953 members of the Honolulu Japanese Junior Chamber of Commerce and their wives created a beauty contest the Cherry Blossom Festival CBF Queen Pageant which quickly became an annual spectacle for the growing urban population of Honolulu. Crowning the Nice Girl analyzes the pageant through its decades of development to the present within multiple frameworks of gender class and race ethnicity. Drawing on extensive archival research interviews with CBF queens contestants and organizers and participant observation in the Fiftieth Annual Festival as a volunteer Christine Yano paints a complex portrait of not only a beauty pageant but also a community. The study begins with the subject of beauty pageants in general and Asian American beauty pageants in particular interrogating the issues they raise embedding them within their histories and examining them as part of a global culture that has taken its model from the Miss America contest. Yano follows the pageant throughout the decades into the 1990s adding corresponding herstories extensive narratives drawn from interviews with CBF queens. She concludes by framing issues of race ethnicity spectacle and community within the intertwined themes of niceness and banality.
