Strategic Power and Soviet Foreign Policy Arnold Lawrence Horelick, Myron Rush, 1965 Strategic Power and National Security J. I. Coffey, 2010-11-23 In this closely reasoned and lucid analysis an important thinker on American strategy surveys weapons technology and its military and political implications for the 1970s J I Coffey refutes the argument that American national security requires superior strategic offensive forces or extensive air and missile defenses In so doing he assesses in simple terms the various factors involved in this complex and difficult subject While many books on strategy deal only with a single area or a particular weapons system this work synthesizes technical and non technical considerations across the whole range of national security issues affected by strategic power war fighting deterrence Communist behavior alliance relationships nuclear proliferation and arms control Its orderly and authoritative marshaling of tabulated data its citations from Department of Defense documents and congressional hearings and its classifications of the alternative options which strategy makers can now pursue are all invaluable to both the student of national security and the professional strategist

Great Power Security Cooperation David W. Kearn, 2014-12-18 This book explains the conditions under which great powers are likely to cooperate to improve their security by engaging in qualitative arms control In agreeing to limit or proscribe certain classes of weapons states will constrain their military capabilities and therefore decrease the threat they pose to potential adversaries Focusing on the expected military impact of technological change and the capacity of states to confidently monitor the activities of its negotiating partners it may be possible to forge lasting agreements that improves the security of the participating states However at other times the nature technological change may force states to engage in competitive behavior precluding cooperation and increasing the probability of conflict Examining a diverse set of cases including the Washington Naval Conference The World Disarmament Conference at Geneva the Baruch Plan for the International Control of Atomic Energy and the SALT I Accords including the ABM Treaty this volume presents a persuasive comprehensive and interesting contribution to the literature on arms racing and arms control and should be of interest to students of international relations theory and security studies By presenting a theoretical informed model that explicitly links the security strategies of states to their choices about development and deployment of new weapons and consequently their willingness to engage in arms control cooperation this book provides an important refinement upon existing theoretical and historical approaches
