development African Ark Ara Monadjem, 2023-02-01 The story of how Africa's mammals have helped shape the continent's landscapes over time to support an amazing diversity of life Africa is home to an amazing array of animals including the world's most diverse assortment of large mammals These include the world's largest terrestrial mammal the African elephant which still roams great swathes of the continent alongside a host of other well known large mammals with hooves such as hippopotamuses giraffes rhinoceroses and zebras African Ark Mammals Landscape and the Ecology of a Continent tells the story of where these mammals have come from and how they have interacted to create the richly varied landscape that makes up Africa as we know it today It gives an equal airing to small mammals such as rodents and bats which are often overlooked by both naturalists and zoologists in favor of their larger cousins African Ark not only describes the diversity of African mammals and the habitats in which they live it also explains the processes by which species and population groups are formed and how these fluctuate over time A book on mammals would not be complete without attention placed on the impact of megafauna on the environment and the important roles they play in shaping the landscape In this way mammals such as elephants and rhinoceros support countless plant communities and the habitats of many smaller animals The book brings in a human perspective as well as a conservation angle in its assessment of the interaction of African mammals with the people who live alongside them African Ark is at once scientifically rigorous and accessible for the layperson and student alike while drawing on the contributions of numerous zoologists ecologists and conservationists dedicated to the understanding of Africa and its wildlife

The Waterside Ape Peter H. Rhys Evans, 2019-07-24 Why are humans so fond of water Why is our skin colour so variable Why aren't we hairy like our close ape relatives A savannah scenario of human evolution has been widely accepted primarily due to fossil evidence and fossils do not offer insight into these questions Other alternative evolutionary scenarios might but these models have been rejected This book explores a controversial idea that human evolution was intimately associated with watery habitats as much or more than typical savannahs Written from a medical point of view the author presents evidence supporting a credible alternative explanation for how humans diverged from our primate ancestors

Anatomical and physiological evidence offer insight into hairlessness different coloured skin subcutaneous fat large brains a marine type kidney a unique heat regulation system and speech This evidence suggests that humans may well have evolved not just as savannah mammals as is generally believed but with more affinity for aquatic habitats rivers streams lakes and coasts Key Features Presents the evidence for a close association between riparian habitats and the origin of humans Reviews the savannah ape hypothesis for human origins Describes various anatomical adaptations that are associated with hypotheses of human evolution Explores characteristics from the head and neck such as skull and sinus structures the larynx and ear structures and functions Corroborates a novel scenario for the origin of human kind a counterpoint to the textbooks or other books which deal with human evolution I think readers will see it as a clearly written well supported discussion of an alternative perspective on human origins Kathlyn Stewart Canadian Museum of Nature Ottawa There is a pressing need to expand discussions of human evolution to include non anthropocentric narratives that use comparative data Dr Rhys Evans specific expertise and experience with the human head neck ears throat mouth and sinuses provides him with a distinct perspective from which to approach the subject of human evolution Moreover his understanding of non anthropocentric views of human evolution water based models allow him to apply a biological approach to the subject missing in more traditional savannah based models Stephen Munro National Museum of Australia

Wise, 2022-02-25 The renowned naturalist Loren Eisely observed that we humans have given up the certainty of the animal that what it senses is exactly there in the shape the eye beholds The big question is what did we get in return This book provides a convincing answer to this question arguing that instead of recording reality your brain uses your experience to create a story a narrative about how what happened to you in the past led to what is happening to you now This narrative is your private reality The book continues by showing how replacing recorded reality with private narrative enabled humans to anticipate the fundamentally unknowable immediate and remote future and expose potential threats It then shows how private narrative enabled complex thought and communication with others Drawing upon a wide range of research the book provides a stimulating new way of viewing human experience thinking communicating and action
