The Greening Of Georgia The Improvement Of The Environment In The Twentieth Century:

The Greening of Georgia R. Harold Brown, 2002 In The Greening of Georgia The Improvement of the Environment in the Twentieth Century agricultural scientist R Harold Brown argues that while there is much left to do in environmental preservation Georgia's environment is better at the end of the twentieth century than any time in the previous 100 years despite the industrial and residential development Since the 1940s topsoil erosion has been reduced to a minor problem forests now cover at least three million more acres and wetlands appear nearly as extensive as in colonial days Industrial growth increased pollution of streams but dumping of untreated waste has been stopped water related human diseases have virtually disappeared and fish have returned Atlanta's air is clearer than at mid century when there were four times the concentration of particles and sulfur dioxide No air pollutant is higher than in the 1970s and most are much lower Georgia's water and air are the cleanest they have been in fifty years Wildlife is more plentiful and diverse the white tail deer population has increased to nuisance levels new species of songbirds have moved into the state and the bluebird population has increased nearly five percent each year since 1966 Atlanta Unbound Carlton Wade Basmajian, 2013-09-20 Looking at Atlanta Georgia one might conclude that the city's notorious sprawl degraded air quality and tenuous water supply is a result of a lack of planning particularly an absence of coordination at the regional level This book shows that Atlanta's low density urban form and its associated problems have been both highly coordinated and regionally planned The author shows how regional policies spanned political boundaries and framed local debates over several decades in the city's history The author explores four cases regional land development plans water supply strategies growth management policies and transportation infrastructure programs to provide a detailed account of the interactions between citizens planners regional commissions state government and federal agencies A Regional Geography of the United States and Canada Lisa Benton-Short, John Rennie Short, Chris Mayda, 2018-07-25 Now in a thoroughly revised and updated edition this text offers a comprehensive examination of North America's physical and human geography weaving in the key themes of environment and sustainability throughout The authors explore the challenges each region faces such as water shortages climate change increased migration and diversity urbanization and continued economic changes The book also highlights the positive actions that Americans and Canadians are taking to move toward a more sustainable future New features in the second edition include sections on population immigration and diversity and urban trends Each chapter also features a case study that examines a national park representing natural and cultural heritage how the region is coping with climate change how geospatial technologies are applied to environmental challenges iconic images and or cultural festivals urban sustainability best practices and global connections and networks Designed for ease of teaching and learning the book features full color photographs and maps throughout chapter highlights lists of key terms places and major cities for each chapter discussion questions and a glossary Ducktown Smoke, 2011 Ducktown Smoke Southeastern Geographer David M. The Natural Communities of Georgia Leslie Edwards, Jonathan Ambrose, L. Katherine Kirkman, 2013-02-01 The Natural Communities of Georgia presents a comprehensive overview of the state's natural landscapes providing an ecological context to enhance understanding of this region's natural history Georgia boasts an impressive range of natural communities assemblages of interacting species that have either been minimally impacted by modern human activities or have successfully recovered from them This guide makes the case that identifying these distinctive communities and the factors that determine their distribution are central to understanding Georgia's ecological diversity and the steps necessary for its conservation Within Georgia's five major ecoregions the editors identify and describe a total of sixty six natural communities such as the expansive salt marshes of the barrier islands in the Maritime ecoregion the fire driven longleaf pine woodlands of the Coastal Plain the beautiful granite outcrops of the Piedmont the rare prairies of the Ridge and Valley and the diverse coves of the Blue Ridge With contributions from scientists who have managed researched and written about Georgia landscapes for decades the guide features more than four hundred color photographs that reveal the stunning natural beauty and diversity of the state The book also explores conservation issues including rare or declining species current and future threats to specific areas and research needs and provides land management strategies for preserving restoring and maintaining biotic communities The Natural Communities of Georgia is an essential reference for ecologists and other scientists as well as a rich resource for Georgians interested in the region's natural heritage

Let Us Now Praise Famous Gullies Paul S. Sutter, 2015-12-15 Providence Canyon State Park also known as Georgia's Little Grand Canyon preserves a network of massive erosion gullies allegedly caused by poor farming practices during the nineteenth century It is a park that protects the scenic results of an environmental disaster While little known today Providence Canyon enjoyed a modicum of fame in the 1930s During that decade local boosters attempted to have Providence Canyon protected as a national park insisting that it was natural At the same time national and international soil experts and other environmental reformers used Providence Canyon as the apotheosis of human and particularly southern land abuse Let Us Now Praise Famous Gullies uses the unlikely story of Providence Canyon and the 1930s contest over its origins and meaning to recount the larger history of dramatic human induced soil erosion across the South and to highlight the role that the region and its erosive agricultural history played in the rise of soil science and soil conservation in America More than that though the book is a meditation on the ways in which our persistent mental habit of separating nature from culture has stunted our ability to appreciate places like Providence Canyon and to understand the larger history of American conservation Dams and Geomorphology P.J.

Beyer,2005-12-19 Dams profoundly impact the geomorphology of rivers by altering the natural patterns of water sediment and energy flow in rivers These changes have a largely negative impact on aquatic and riparian ecosystems upstream and downstream of the dam Natural dams also impact river geomorphology although with positive and negative repercussions for aquatic and riparian organisms In 2002 the 33rd Binghamton Geomorphology Symposium convened under the theme Dams and Morphology and featured invited papers and contributed posters on topics of natural dams artificial dams and dam removal Fourteen of these papers have been included in this volume Rails Through the Wiregrass H. The Georgia Florida Railroad began with bright promise but like many other enterprises in the early twentieth century South it experienced hard times The story begins in 1906 when responding to a perceived need for better connections to northern markets a group of entrepreneurs led by prominent Virginia banker John Skelton Williams began to cobble together logging short lines to create more than 350 miles of railroad connecting Augusta Georgia with Madison Florida At first the G F triggered growth in its region as several new towns sprang up or expanded along its lines By 1915 however the economic dislocations caused by World War I threw the G F into receivership and a few years later the G F came close to dismemberment Fortunately shippers and investors rallied to the railroad s cause and business conditions improved In 1926 the road was reorganized and under pressure to expand or die built to Greenwood South Carolina The Great Depression forced the G F into bankruptcy and after its record length receivership it was acquired by the Southern Railway in 1963 When the Southern Railway dissolved the corporation and abandoned much of the former trackage the G F became the Gone Forgotten Yet in its 57 year lifespan the G F did much to bring about agricultural diversification and relative prosperity in the wiregrass region of southern Georgia and northern Florida Offering insights on social and economic conditions in the South from the late nineteenth century to the mid twentieth century Grant s study of this obscure yet noteworthy railroad will appeal to those interested in transportation business railroad and Southern regional history Atlanta History ,2001

Green Schools Globally Annette Gough, John Chi-Kin Lee, Eric Po Keung Tsang, 2020-08-31 This book brings together stories of the green schools movement Eco Schools Enviroschools Green Schools Sustainable Schools ResourceSmart Schools etc in several countries around the world with a focus on the impact of the movement on the development and implementation of education for sustainable development in each of the countries In particular each story will explain the history of the movement per country its current status achievements obstacles and broader impact There have been a number of evaluations of these school movements at a national or more local level and numerous articles and chapters have been published on aspects of these schools activities but to date these have not been brought together in a single volume that focuses attention on the impact of the movement on education for sustainable development in each country This is the purpose of this volume The green schools movement focuses on a whole school approach which aims to include everyone students teachers and the local community to improve school environments including resource usage and the environmental footprint of the school to motivate students to take on environmental problems and seek resolutions particularly at a local level but also thinking globally and to improve students attitudes and behaviours as part of developing a sustainable mind set
