Iris Murdoch Hilda D. Spear, 2006-10-23 Iris Murdoch produced twenty six novels in forty years The last of these Jackson's Dilemma was published in 1995 four years before her death Murdoch's interest in moral problems inclined her towards what could be seen as an unusual view of human character and human life leading her to create bizarre situations and offer unsettling solutions which frequently challenge and intrigue the reader This essential introduction to one of Britain's best known writers guides the reader through the full range of Murdoch's fictional output tracing basic patterns which run throughout Murdoch's work and showing how the novels help to elucidate one another The revised updated and expanded new edition takes into account certain details which have emerged following Murdoch's death in 1999 incorporates the latest scholarship and offers fuller treatment of a number of novels The second edition also gives more weight to the development of the moral discourse which is predominant in Murdoch's work From the mid sixties onwards Murdoch was intensely concerned with the problems of Good and Evil in a godless world In the later novels particularly those of the eighties and nineties she posited the possibility of mystic personalities who influence others from a position beyond the normal parameters of our world Hilda D Spear examines these mystic and mysterious fictions in the later chapters of her study and argues that Jackson's Dilemma should be viewed as Murdoch's unfinished novel

Freedom and Limit P. Fiddes, 1991-11-25 If imagination is understood to be a human response to the self revelation of God what practical results might this have for the work both of literary criticism and theology Both theologians and creative writers find human existence to be characterised by basic tension between freedom and limit which accounts for a sense of fallenness and which a dialogue between literature and Christian doctrine can do much to illuminate Such a dialogue is worked out in studies of the poetry of William Blake and Gerard Manley Hopkins and the novels of D H Lawrence Iris Murdoch and William Golding

Narrative Comprehension Catherine Emmott,1997 Despite the current explosion of interest in cognitive linguistics there has so far been relatively little research by cognitive linguists on narrative comprehension Emmott draws on insights from discourse analysis and artificial intelligence to present a detailed model of how readers build maintain and use mental representations of fictional contexts and how they keep track of characters and contexts within a complex changing fictional world The work has implications for linguistic theory since it questions several long held assumptions about anaphora arguing for a levels of consciousness model for the processing of referring expressions The book begins with a summary of current issues in text processing theory and a discussion of the methodological importance of recognizing the hierarchical structure of discourse The core of the book explores the significance of contextual monitoring in narrative comprehension and looks particularly at the cognitive demands placed on readers by flashbacks Later chapters examine the implications of contextual monitoring for reference theory and for a literary linguistic model of narrative text types The study focuses on anaphoric pronouns in narratives assessing the accumulated knowledge required for readers to interpret these key grammatical items
