Bigtops to Billboards John Loring, 2023-01-13 BIGTOPS to BILLBOARDS follows the astonishing career of Colonel Burr Robbins beginning with rare original letters from the Civil War frontlines and then Burr Robbins promotion at twenty seven to colonel in the Union Army The war concluded in 1865 with his love of showmanship He opened a cabaret theater in the boom and soon bust Pennsylvania oil rush which rapidly collapsed Having briefly worked for the mid west's largest traveling circus as a teenager before the war he set his not modest goal on building a circus of his own in southern Michigan beginning with only two white hens dyed red and green and touted as the sacred fowl of India one talented monkey a young local dancing bear a mule with an unusually broad head said to tell fortunes one hawk also colorfully dyed and his own talents at singing storytelling and advertising Joining forces and networking with other small shows and signing on partners with major connections in the circus world he built the Burr Robbins Circus into the third largest circus in America and changed the look of American towns and cities with his giant posters It was a rough life moving a large circus and menagerie about the war torn mid west and across the Mississippi into Indian territories but the circus was the only entertainment and everyone came By the mid 1880s Colonel Burr wanted to move on to greater projects and sold the circus to the Ringling Brothers who had not yet formed a significant show The sale was completed in 1888 With his belief in poster advertising he bought up most of the advertising companies in Chicago and formed the American Billposting Company which eventually turned into the giant General Outdoor Advertising Co and retired a very rich man with oil fields in southern Kansas and hundreds of Chicago properties The book is richly illustrated with cabinet card photos of performers animals wonderfully exaggerated wording in circus advertising and much good advice on how to honestly make your way in the world from seemingly hopeless beginnings to fame and fortune Classical New York Elizabeth Macaulay-Lewis, Matthew McGowan, 2018-09-04 Essays on the historical Greco Roman influence on the evolving architectural landscape of New York City During its rise from capital of an upstart nation to global metropolis the visual language of Greek and Roman antiquity played a formative role in the development of New York's art and architecture This compilation of essays offers a survey of diverse reinterpretations of classical forms in some of the city's most iconic buildings public monuments and civic spaces Classical New York examines the influence of Greco Roman thought and design from the Greek Revival of the late eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries through the late nineteenth century American Renaissance and Beaux Arts period and into the twentieth century's Art Deco. At every juncture New Yorkers looked to the classical past for knowledge and inspiration in seeking out new ways to cultivate a civic identity and to structure their public and private spaces. Specialists from a range of disciplines—archaeology, architectural history, art history, classics, and history—focus on how classical art and architecture are repurposed to help shape many of New York City's most evocative buildings and works of art. Federal Hall evoked the Parthenon as an architectural and democratic model; the Pantheon served as a model for the creation of libraries at New York University and Columbia University. Pennsylvania Station derived its form from the Baths of Caracalla, and Atlas and Prometheus of Rockefeller Center recast ancient myths in a new light during the Great Depression. This examination of post-Revolutionary art, politics, and philosophy enriches the conversation about how we shape space, be it civic, religious, academic, theatrical, or domestic, and how we make use of that space and the objects in it.
