practices as well as how beholders looked to art to provide a transcendent experience Schwain explores how a modern conception of faith as an individual relationship with the divine facilitated this sanctified relationship between art and viewer This stress on the interior and subjective experience of religion accentuated the artist s efforts to engage beholders personally with works of art how better to fix the viewer s attention than to hold out the promise of salvation Schwain shows that while these new visual practices emphasized individual encounters with art objects they also carried profound social implications By negotiating changes in religious belief by aestheticizing faith in a new particularly American manner these practices contributed to evolving debates about art ethnicity sexuality and gender
