Archaeology's Visual

Culture Roger Balm, 2015-12-14 Archaeology's Visual Culture explores archaeology through the lens of visual culture theory. The insistent visuality of archaeology is a key stimulus for the imaginative and creative interpretation of our encounters with the past. Balm investigates the nature of this projection of the visual, revealing an embedded subjectivity in the imagery of archaeology and acknowledging the multiplicity of meanings that cohere around artifacts, archaeological sites, and museum displays. Using a wide range of case studies, the book highlights how archaeologists can view objects and the consequences that ensue from these ways of seeing. Throughout the book, Balm considers the potential for documentary images and visual material held in archives to perform cultural work within and between groups of specialists. With primary sources ranging from the mid-nineteenth to the early twenty-first century, this volume also maps the intellectual and social connections between archaeologists and their peers. Geographical settings include Britain, Cyprus, Mesoamerica, the Middle East, and the United States, and the sites of visual encounter are no less diverse, ranging from excavation reports in salvage archaeology to instrumentally derived data sets and remote sensing imagery. By forensically examining selected visual records from published accounts and archival sources, enduring tropes of representation become apparent that transcend issues of style and reflect fundamental visual sensibilities within the discipline of archaeology.

Encyclopedia of Archaeology Tim Murray, 1999-10-26 Encyclopedia of Archaeology: The Great Archaeologists features 58 remarkable biographies written by some of the world's best-known archaeologists. These essays are arranged chronologically and thus constitute a history of archaeology from its beginnings in the Renaissance to the present day. Especially exciting is the coverage of figures little known to readers in the West. Russian, Chinese, and Mexican archaeologists receive their due. Each biography begins with a brief summary of the subject's importance, then goes on to discuss the life and contributions of the biographee, with a focus on his or her role in the development of archaeology as a discipline. Controversy, take for example the notorious Schliemann excavator of Troy, is not swept under the rug. Each essay concludes with a bibliography of primary sources for people who want to read about the archaeologists' discoveries in their own words and secondary sources to see what critics and admirers had to say.

People of the Earth Brian Fagan, Nadia Durrani, 2023-06-21 People of the Earth is a narrative account of the prehistory of humankind from our origins over 6 million years ago to the first pre-industrial states beginning about 5,000 years ago. This is a global prehistory which covers prehistoric times in every corner of the world in a jargon-free style for newcomers to archaeology. Many world histories begin with the first pre-industrial states. This book starts at the beginning of human history and summarizes the latest research into such major topics as human origins, the emergence and spread of modern humans, the first farming, and the origins of civilization. People of the Earth is unique in its even balance of the human past, its readily accessible style, and its flowing narrative that carries the reader through the long sweep of our past. The book is highly illustrated and features boxes and sidebars describing key dating methods and important archaeological sites. This classic world prehistory sets the standard for books on the subject and is the most widely used such textbook in the world. It is aimed at introductory students in archaeology and anthropology taking survey courses on the prehistoric past as well as more advanced readers It will also appeal to students of human responses to climatic and environmental change

Communities and Households in the Greater American Southwest Robert J. Great Museum of the Sea James P. Delgado, 2025-07 In The Great Museum of the Sea archaeologist museum director television host journalist and award winning author James Delgado takes the reader on a personal tour of the world of shipwrecks including many of the more than one hundred lost ships he has personally discovered investigated excavated and shared in print and on screen In these pages Delgado explains why people care about shipwrecks and why we have incorporated the concept of a shipwreck and shipwrecks themselves into our religions and cultures since the earliest civilizations Aleksei P. Okladnikov: The Great Explorer of the Past. Volume 2 Aleksander K. Konopatskii, 2021-01-07 The second volume of the biography of prominent Soviet archaeologist Aleksei P Okladnikov 1908 1981 concentrates on his works in 1961 1981 when he was a director at the Siberian Branch of the USSR Academy of Sciences in Novosibirsk during this time he continued his active fieldworks in Siberia Russian Far East Central Asia and Mongolia Editing the Image Mark

Arthur Cheetham, Elizabeth Legge, Catherine M. Soussloff, 2008-01-01 Editing the Image looks at the editing of visual media as both a series of technical exercises and as an allegory Side-by-Side Survey Susan Alcock, John Cherry, 2016-10-02

Twenty years ago John Cherry looked forward to the day when archaeological survey projects working around the Mediterranean region the Frogs round the pond would begin to compare and synthesize the information they had collected He anticipated researchers tackling big questions of interregional scope in new and interesting ways working at a geographical scale considerably larger than that of the individual survey Was his optimism misplaced Despite the extraordinary growth of interest in field survey projects and regional analysis and despite the developments in survey methodology that have been discussed and implemented in the past two decades few scholars have attempted to use survey data in a comparative mode and to answer the broad scale questions confronting social historians In this volume which is the outcome of an advanced Workshop held at the University of Michigan in 2002 a number of prominent archaeologists return to the question of comparability They discuss the potential benefits of working in a comparative format with evidence from many different Mediterranean survey projects and consider the practical problems that present roadblocks to achieving that objective From mapping and manuring to human settlement and demography environment and culture each addresses different questions often with quite different approaches together they offer a range of perspectives on how to put surveys side by side Contributors include Susan E Alcock John Cherry Jack L Davis Peter Attema Martijn van Leusen James C Wright Robin Osborne David Mattingly T J Wilkinson and Richard E Blanton
