LaMay, 1993-01-01 College and university education has long been a material and intellectual luxury in American life Fewer than 38 percent of Americans have ever attended college and only about half that number hold bachelor's degrees While post World War Two legislation greatly democratized higher education the editors of this volume contend that the system has never been a public stewardship Many universities are devoted to private sector research rather than public learning to productivity rather than democratic discourse and because of diminished financial opportunities increasingly exclude poor working and lower middle class students many of them people of color The contributors to this volume recognize that the American system of higher education is the most open and egalitarian in the world Largely for this reason it is the only American institution which today enjoys a positive balance of trade Many more foreign students come to study at American universities than do Americans go to study abroad The study of higher education in an information age means examining higher education The place of economics in decision making is as a vehicle for social mobility The volume covers a myriad of themes the role of media ranking universities and their contribution to low expectations of universities the disjunction between massive support for college and university sports events and the intellectual and presumed academic missions of these institutions of higher learning and boosterism as a general phenomenon in funding Yet editors and contributors alike emphasize new currents in the educational agenda The essays cover efforts to close the gap between the mutual recriminations of universities and media leaders The theme of this volume is that there is a crisis in higher education and a crisis in knowledge who produces it controls it uses it and benefits by it Properly understood the issues common to both higher education and the media have profound implications for public life This volume is critical of current practices but also mindful that the university remains a place in which civil forms of discourse are central and hence of great potential benefit to the dissemination of information and ideas as such It will be of interest to professional and interested in communication and education Tales of the Circle P , The Academic Marketplace Theodore Caplow, 2017-12-01 This volume is a must for anyone interested in academic problems and will produce the emotion of recognition in those concerned and the emotion of surprise in those outside the field Los Angeles Times Professors Caplow and McGee have given scholarly respectability to what many a professor has long suspected Competition in the academic marketplace is as severe as in the business world Their book might come to have the same function for the professor as Machiavelli's work had for ambitious princes Midwest Journal of Political Science The Academic Marketplace is a straightforward hard hitting exposé of the American university

Caplow and McGee consider all the working parts of the system and assess their suitability to the professed purpose. Their report on the actualities, myths and consequences of routines thus amounts to an anatomy of an institution, an anatomy that does not present a pretty picture. We learn for example that the chief criteria used in making appointments are prestige and compatibility, not teaching ability. The authors describe the precipitous decline in teaching loads and then explain how this tendency is related to the new seller's market on the one hand and to the extravagantly indeterminate structure of the university as an institution on the other. Not only is the temper judicious, the facts well gathered and competently marshaled, but the expression of results is invariably lucid. In a new introduction the authors sort out fact from legend and discern trends; they address the validity of their own research methods and the applicability of their original findings to today's academic marketplace. They observe that the essential commodity offered in the academic marketplace is still the same: the mysterious intangible called prestige, by which universities, colleges, departments, disciplines, fields of inquiry, journals and ultimately faculty candidates are ranked from high to low and raised up and cast down accordingly.

The Academic Novel Merritt Moseley, 2007. A collection of the most illuminating commentary written on the English language academic novel during the last forty years, together with new essays especially commissioned for this volume. As well as general thematic essays, there are discussions of a number of individual novelists: Vladimir Nabokov, Randall Jarrell, Mary McCarthy, Kingsley Amis, Alison Lurie, Robertson Davies, David Lodge, Howard Jacobson. Contributors are Adam Begley, Ian Carter, Benjamin DeMott, Aida Edemariam, Leslie Fiedler, Philip Hobsbaum, J. P. Kenyon, David Lodge, Merritt Moseley, Dale Salwak, Samuel Schuman, J. A. Sutherland, Glyn Turton, Chris Walsh, Susan Watkins, George Watson.

Producing Pleasure in the Contemporary University Stewart Riddle, Marcus K. Harmes, Patrick Alan Danaher, 2017-10-10. Academics working in contemporary universities are experiencing unprecedented and unsustainable pressure in an environment of hyper performativity, metrics and accountability. From this perspective, the university produces multiple tensions and moments of crises where it seems that there is limited space left for the intrinsic enjoyment arising from scholarly practices. This book offers a global perspective on how pleasure is central to the endeavours of academics working in the contemporary university, with contributors evaluating the opportunities for the strategic refusal of the quantifying, stultifying and stupefying delimiters of what is possible for academic production. The aim of this book is to open up spaces for conversation, reflection and thought in order to think, to be and to do differently, pleasurably. Contributors rupture the bounds of what is permissible and possible within their daily lives, habits and practices. As such, this book addresses increasingly significant questions: What are some of the multiple and different ways that we can reclaim pleasure and enhance the durations and intensities of our passions, desires and becoming within the contemporary university? How might these aspirations be realised? What are the spaces for the pleasurable production of research that might be opened up? How might we reconfigure the neoliberal university to be a place of more affect where desire, laughter and joy join with the work that we seek to undertake and the communities whom
