He sees no way out of his unhappy situation until he meets a young CIA officer in Vienna and Golovin thinks he has found a solution to his problems but has he? He starts down a lonely path of espionage which proves to be much more complicated than he originally thought it would be. This is the realistic story of espionage from the perspective of the Russian agent who has no diplomatic immunity if caught and has to deal with the psychological pressures and fears of being a spy all by himself. VOYAGE ON THE DANUBE Gene Coyle, 2020-01-22 By late 1938 Adolf Hitler has already begun Germany's territorial expansion with the surrender of the Sudetenland territory by Czechoslovakia and is preparing for more aggressive actions in 1939. A traditional German General is appalled by Hitler and wants to get word to the British Government of Hitler's plans to invade and seize the rest of Czechoslovakia in March 1939 but how? By chance a holiday cruise ship full of international passengers including twenty-five Indiana University alumni and spouses of the Class of 1924 are sailing down the Danube River in December 1938. Also on the ship is a British spy trying to get the General's secret letter to London and German Gestapo officers trying to stop that from happening but which of the sixty passengers is the British spy? By the time the ship reaches the end of the cruise in Budapest four people are dead, one alum has found love, one couple is getting divorced, and a number of passengers are missing their jewelry. For many it truly will be their last voyage. Everybody Lies in Wartime

Gene Coyle, 2018-08-16 Everybody lies especially in wartime. Individuals do it for personal advantage. Governments do it for political and strategic reasons. General Donovan, the director of the US military's Office of Strategic Services, sends officer Charles Worthington in early 1944 to open a direct liaison relationship between the OSS and the Soviets' civilian intelligence service, the NKVD. The exchange program turns out to be a waste of time but then Charles receives a discreet offer from an NKVD official. He claims to have information about NKVD penetrations within a secret American weapons program called the Manhattan Project which is supposedly developing something called an atomic bomb. In return, the Russian wants to be smuggled to America to begin a new life. His life is also complicated by his growing fondness for an attractive female employee at the British embassy in Moscow, efforts by various Russian informants around him, and the harsh Russian winter. In the end, he must decide whether he will do what is best for himself or best for America. More Stories from Langley
