

Introduction

The drowned man washes up and is covered in mud. The kids play with him all afternoon. A man carried his corpse to the nearest house without he weighed more and taller than any dead man they had ever known. They did not even have to clean off his face to know that the dead man was a stranger.

Rising Action

The men leave to see if anyone is missing from nearby villages to see where the drowned man came from.

Rising Action

They bring the drowned man inside and clean him off. The women name him Eusebio and make him some clothes. The clothes turn out too small because Eusebio doesn't fit their imagination.

Climax

They held a funeral for Eusebio with many other people from nearby villages. They got tons of flowers for him, and then they released him back into the ocean.

Falling Action

The villagers realized they were not complete and that everything would be different from now on. They decided to make the village worthy for Eusebio so that his memory could remain in the village.

Resolution

The village has been brought together and is much more beautiful because of the effect that Eusebio had on the villagers.
