Excerpt from The Early Days of Santa Barbara California From the First Discoveries by Europeans to December 1846 In disregard of the historic value of the old buildings of the Mission Presidio and Pueblo of Santa Barbara precious monuments sacred to the memory of men who will be remembered for generations to come tiled roofs have been destroyed walls allowed to crumble and foundations effaced Already some of the most interesting buildings have gone Even their former locations are known to few Fifteen years ago realizing how rapidly the old landmarks were disappearing the writer with the assistance of an engineer made surveys both at the Mission and at the presidio of all the buildings then standing and also of all the ruins and traces of foundations of former buildings These surveys were then carefully platted This work was done on account of a personal interest in the subject and with the view of placing the data thus obtained at the disposal of any one competent and willing to write the history of the early days of Santa Barbara But the subject has awakened but little interest in the historian and as some of the ruins that were then surveyed have since disappeared the writer now offers this little sketch accompanied by plans of the Mission and presidio made from the original surveys in the hope that it will create a greater interest in the lives and works of the founders of this beautiful city About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
