The Great Barn Of Bredon Its Fire And Reconstruction:

A Century of British Medieval Studies Alan Deyermond, 2007-11-29 This is an authoritative guide to the full range of medieval scholarship undertaken in twentieth century Britain history archaeology language culture Some of the twenty nine essays focus on changes in research method or on the achievements of individual scholars others are personal accounts of a lifetime s work

Understanding the Workplace: A Research Framework for Industrial Archaeology in Britain: 2005 David Gwyn, 2017-12-02 This volume was first delivered at a conference organised by the Association for Industrial Archaeology in Nottingham in June 2004 and formerly constituted a special issue of Industrial Archaeology Review The papers have the explicit intention of formulating a research framework for industrial archaeology in the 21st century and demonstrating how far industrial archaeology is now a fully recognised element of mainstream archaeology

Not So Much a Pot, More a Way of Life Christopher G. Cumberpatch, Paul Blinkhorn, 1997 There is more to artefact analysis than the study of chronology and provenance This is the theme of these essays which are based on discussions at the Theoretical Archaeology Group conferences at Durham and Bradford in 1993 and 1994 The authors are concerned that some of the theoretical and practical orientations of artefact analysis are restrictive and of questionable validity Contents include Individual and community choice in present day pottery production and exchange in the Andes Bill Sillar The social context of eating and drinking in early Roman Britain Karen I Meadows Historical geographical and anthropological imaginations early ceramics in southern Italy M Z Pluciennik From ceramic finishes to modes of production Iron Age finewares from central France Kevin Andrews Why do excavation reports have finds catalogues Penelope M Allison Family household and production the potters of the Saintonge France 1500 to 1800 Elizabeth Musgrave The social significance of imported medieval pottery Duncan H Brown Habitus social identity and Anglo Saxon pottery P W Blinkhorn Towards a phenomenological approach to the study of medieval pottery C G Cumberpatch Size is important Iron Age vessel capacities in central and southern England Ann Woodward Paul Blinkhorn

Archaeological Investigation Martin Carver, Madeleine Hummler, 2024-12-18 The thoroughly updated second edition of Archaeological Investigation reviews and explains the practices of field archaeology in the world today Now co authored by Madeleine Hummler the book s scope has been enlarged in time and space reaching out to the different methods and strategies applied in both the academic and commercial sectors in diverse terrain on land and under the sea Archaeological Investigation accompanies the reader on a journey from absolute beginner to professional Part 1 Principles sets the scene for newcomers showing the axial role of fieldwork in rediscovering the past Part 2 In the Field is aimed at those setting out to collect primary data by the diverse methods of modern survey and excavation Word pictures on First day in the field and First day on a dig provide friendly introductions to the high tech enterprise that fieldwork has become Now fully engaged in the process newcomers to archaeology are ready in Part 3 Writing Up to take part in the process of making the discoveries known Here the findings of fieldwork are marshalled to analyse the assemblage the use of space and the chronology of what happened The results are then combined in a synthesis and communicated through websites museums the display of sites and above all through publication Part 4 Design engages the reader in archaeology's primary action how to design projects that conserve rediscover and explain the human past beginning with a review of some landmark examples Chapter 13 The final chapter The Profession reviews the role of the state the academy the commercial sector and the public in making archaeology happen and why it matters Building on the authors extensive experience Archaeological Investigation remains an inspiring provocative informative and entertaining book for students and professionals arguing that the investigation of the human and environmental past is highly relevant to contemporary society and its future Monastic

Archaeology Graham D. Keevill, Teresa Anne Hall, 2001 England Timothy Darvill, Jane Timby, Paul Stamper, 2002 Traveling around England is in many senses a journey back in time On all sides and sometimes even under the road or footpath itself there are fragments of the ancient past alongside the clutter of the modern world Medieval villages castles ancient churches and Roman villas are commonplace and take us back to the time of Christ And far older yet equally abundant are the barrows hillforts stone circles camps standing stones trackways and other relics of prehistoric times Now thanks to these three archaeologists each a specialist in one of the three periods covered by the Guide prehistoric Roman and medieval readers have the chance to not only explore but to understand in context these fascinating sites and ruins In addition to reporting on such well known sites as Stonehenge and Hadrian's Wall and cities such as London and York which themselves offer a wealth of archaeological remains the book also covers smaller lesser known sites throughout the country An introductory section provides background to the monuments and a reference section provides definitions further reading and information about museum collections Finally there are 200 photographs plans and maps that depict and describe these ancient remains in detail Journal of the British Archaeological Association, 2000 The Great Barn of Bredon

Frederick William Bolton Charles, Christopher Dyer, 1997 The Bredon Barn was built about 1340 and destroyed by fire on April 18th 1980 This is the story of its rebuilding It begins with an account of the five other great medieval barns still standing in the Coswold Severn region providing a setting for a detailed look at Bredon as it was Christopher Dyer contributes a chapter on the background history and its social economic significance whilst the bleak central section turns its attention to the fire and aftermath Supported by a comprehensive photographic record by Martin Charles and architectural drawings there is full discussion of the emergency repairs and meticulous reconstruction work which in itself is a valuable contribution to an understanding of medieval building techniques Architecture Today, 1997 Annual Report, 1997
