Someone Cares:

Praiseworthiness Zoë Johnson King, 2025-10-13 This is an open access title available under the terms of a CC BY NC ND 4.0 International licence. It is free to read on the Oxford Academic platform and offered as a free PDF download from OUP and selected open access locations. Philosophers have had a lot to say about moral blameworthiness but much less about moral praiseworthiness. In this book Zoë Johnson King bucks the trend: she offers a conceptual framework with which to theorise about praiseworthiness in its own right and a comprehensive theory of the types of thing for which we can be praiseworthy and the substantive conditions under which we are praiseworthy for things of each type. Johnson King argues that what we are fundamentally praiseworthy for is what makes us good people to the extent that we are what we care about and what we try to do. She then argues that we can be praiseworthy for what we successfully do and bring about to the extent that our actions are deliberate and are coming from a good place. In developing this account, Johnson King draws on resources from moral metaphysics, moral epistemology, moral metasemantics, and philosophy of action as well as from the philosophical literature on moral responsibility. She then uses her account to shed light on some practical issues concerning improving your own praiseworthiness by working on yourself, the prevalence of moral luck, and the impact of oppression and injustice on praiseworthiness. The final chapter turns from praiseworthiness to the ethics of praise. Johnson King takes the backlash against praise of essential workers during the pandemic as a case study that illustrates an array of pitfalls around which we must delicately skirt when attempting to praise the praiseworthy.

Somebody Knows, Somebody Cares Kirsten

Hutchison, Tricia McCann, 2015-06-25 Somebody Knows, Somebody Cares: Reengaging Students through Relationship explores approaches to engaging young people in schooling through advocacy models of student support. In Australia, as in many nations, increasing social, cultural, and linguistic diversity in school populations is producing complex challenges for education systems, schooling, teaching, and learning. This book shares research-informed insights into the multi-layered approaches required to support vulnerable students and sustain school-based mentoring programs. This edited collection covers theoretical and empirical perspectives on student disengagement from schooling through these key ideas: The benefits of advocacy and mentoring programs on learning and school culture, particularly for students who are at risk of disconnection from learning; Transforming schooling from the bottom up by listening to students, teachers, and principals and supporting educators in the development of situated and dynamic conditions for learning through school-university partnerships; The centrality of positive, caring teacher-student relationships, foregrounding emotional connection as a key component of effective learning derived from the person-centred theory articulated by Carl Rogers. Written by a team of academics, teachers, and school principals, Somebody Knows, Somebody Cares: Reengaging Students through Relationship is a valuable resource for teacher educators, principals, teachers, student welfare counsellors, and counselling practitioners.

Welfare and Rational Care Stephen Darwall, 2010-07-28 What kind of life best ensures human welfare? Since the ancient Greeks, this question has been as central to ethical philosophy as to ordinary reflection But what exactly is welfare This question has suffered from relative neglect And as Stephen Darwall shows it has done so at a price Presenting a provocative new rational care theory of welfare Darwall proves that a proper understanding of welfare fundamentally changes how we think about what is best for people Most philosophers have assumed that a person's welfare is what is good from her point of view namely what she has a distinctive reason to pursue In the now standard terminology welfare is assumed to have an agent relative normativity Darwall by contrast argues that someone's good is what one should want for that person insofar as one cares for her Welfare in other words is normative but not peculiarly for the person whose welfare is at stake In addition Darwall makes the radical proposal that something's contributing to someone's welfare is the same thing as its being something one ought to want for her own sake insofar as one cares Darwall defends this theory with clarity precision and elegance and with a subtle understanding of the place of sympathetic concern in the rich psychology of sympathy and empathy His forceful arguments will change how we understand a concept central to ethics and our understanding of human bonds and human choices

Some Do Care Anne Colby, William Damon, 2010-05-11 A look at the lives of twenty three American moral leaders shows how these hometown heroes acquired their moral goals and sustained them in the face of grave risk and sacrifice working for everything from civil rights to the poor

Psychosocial Oncology and Palliative Care in Hong Kong Richard Fielding, Cecilia Lai-wan Chan, 1999-11-01 As the evidence base for clinical practice in the management of life threatening diseases and care at the end of life increases it is apparent that psychosocial factors play a most profound role influencing outcomes at every level from quality of life and satisfaction with clinical services through to duration of survival and mortality This book documents some but by no means all of the developments that have occurred in the past decade in the area of psychosocial oncology and palliative care in Hong Kong Contributions describing interventions by practitioners involved in service development in nursing social work and clinical psychology are complemented by chapters describing academic research and theoretical perspectives The unique cultural mix of Hong Kong is given rich emphasis in the adaptations made by practitioners and academics to the interventions and theoretical issues outlined As both a documentation of the efforts of some of those who helped psychosocial oncology and palliative care evolve in Hong Kong and as a reflection of the need to more critically evaluate the impact of intervention efforts in health care this volume provides a valuable resource Nurses social workers psychologists and doctors involved in delivering or planning cancer treatment or palliative care will find this book useful This book challenges many attitudes prevalent in Hong Kong and will we hope begin to break some of the taboos that continue to generate unnecessary suffering among the people cared for by our health care systems The valuable experience documented in these pages can help others build the next generation of services to those with life threatening illness and those at the end of life
