Percepts, Concepts and Categories B. Burns, 1992-10-09 The most important distinction derived from the computational view of thought is between structures and processes So proclaimed Farah and Kosslyn in 1982 arguing that structures and processes cannot be examined in isolation and concluding that converging operations are required to isolate the structure process pair that can explain a particular finding The distinction between structure and process within the study of percepts concepts and categories is considered in depth in this volume with penetrating commentaries by fellow authors concluding each chapter This interesting format achieves a broad coverage of the various aspects and implications of the structure process distinction It affords a salient indication of the diversity of positions as to the description and utility of distinguishing structures and processors At the same time it reveals that researchers specializing in areas of study ranging from simple structure and process involved in perceptual organization and texture to complex structure and process associated with reading graphs and chess expertise do utilize such a distinction in similar ways The analysis is organized into four major parts within the book Early Visual Representation and Processing Percepts Concepts Categories and Development Categories Concepts and Learning and Higher Order Representation and Processing aspired to be a Nun now dabbled in mysticism in her parched thirst for truth Then came the days of the Valiant ones who laid siege to our Kingdom for four months Two months in Sue prayed through the nightaEUR and when I learned of it I threatened her life God then showed her in a dream my soul now completely void of light and as she watched giant soulless birds began devouring me Two weeks later and close to death alone in my room I prayed and once I asked for forgiveness a voice above me spoke So the days of my dying ended aEUR for the days of miracles had now begun This is a true story
