Catholic Higher Education in the United States: Exploring the Decision to Enroll from a Student's (or a Student Advisor's) Point of View

Quentin Wodon ^{1,2} ¹ World Bank, Washington, DC 20433, USA; qwodon@worldbank.org² College of Business, Loyola University New Orleans, New Orleans, LA 70118, USA

Abstract: In many countries, those considering enrolling in a Catholic college or university may have a choice between a few universities or none at all. In the United States, they can choose between more than 240 Catholic colleges and universities. This provides a rich array of choices, but it may also make the decision of where to apply and ultimately enroll more complicated. This article provides a simple framework to discuss some of the factors that affect the decision to enroll in higher education and where to enroll. Four basic sequential questions that students may ask are considered: (1) Should I go to college? (2) How should I select a college? (3) How can I compare different colleges? (4) Should I go to a Catholic college? By providing elements of response to these questions, the article provides insights into the decision to enroll in Catholic education and its implications for universities.

1. Introduction

The Catholic Church is the largest non-governmental provider of education in the world. According to data from the Church, in 2020, Catholic pre-primary, primary, and secondary schools enrolled 61.4 million students globally (Secretariat of State [of the Vatican] 2022). In addition, Catholic institutions of higher education enroll 6.6 million students (on global trends in Catholic higher education, see Wodon (2020, 2022)). For basic education, enrollment in Catholic schools has been growing especially rapidly in Africa. As a result, today, seven in ten students in Catholic primary schools live in low and lower-middle-income countries. By contrast, for higher education, Catholic universities and other post-secondary education institutions remain concentrated in upper-middle and high-income countries, as is the case for other types of universities (on some of the challenges affecting the higher education sector as a whole, see International Federation of Catholic Universities Foresight Unit (2021); Mellul (2022)). Globally, seven in ten students in Catholic higher education live in upper-middle or high-income countries¹.

The United States, the country of focus for this article, plays an especially important role in Catholic higher education globally. This is in part due to the size of the country and the fact that it has a highly educated and comparatively wealthy population. However, it is also due to the fact that universities in the United States are popular abroad. Although the number of international students has been reduced due to the COVID-19 pandemic, it remains high. Overall, in 2020, of all students enrolled in Catholic higher education globally, almost one-fifth (1.2 million) were enrolled in the United States. This estimate includes both students in universities and those enrolled in other forms of higher education. If one considers only university students, the United States accounts for 22% of all students enrolled in Catholic universities globally (more than 0.8 million out of a total of almost 3.8 million students). After the United States, India and the Philippines have the largest number of students in Catholic higher education. Several European and Latin American

Some Problems of Catholic Higher Education in the United States Roy Joseph Deferrari, 1963 American Catholic Higher Education in the 21st Century Robert R. Newton, Joseph Albert Appleyard, James L. Heft, William P. Leahy, David J. O'Brien, Jessica A. Greene, Michael J. Himes, Robert J. Kaslyn, 2015-01 As part of its Sesquicentennial celebration Boston College invited leading Catholic educators to a symposium concerning the future of Catholic higher education in the United States. Participants gathered from October 22-24, 2013 at BC's Connors Family Retreat and Conference Center in Dover, Massachusetts. They discussed four critical issues requiring engagement by Catholic educational leaders: 1. strengthening awareness of and commitment to the Catholic intellectual tradition on Catholic campuses; 2. ensuring the personal and religious formation of students; 3. clarifying the relationship of Catholic colleges and universities to the Church; and 4. identifying and preparing future leaders of Catholic postsecondary institutions. The essays in this volume provided context for the days at Dover and are intended to spotlight and urge action on critical challenges facing American Catholic higher education today. The Future of Catholic Higher Education James Heft, 2021 After many years of scholarship, administrative experience, and leadership in Catholic higher education, James Heft has written a book that draws upon many academic disciplines to paint a picture of the past, the current situation, challenges, strengths, and weaknesses of Catholic universities, and after identifying its foundational pillars, points the way to a future that is open to modern culture without capitulating to it, embraces Catholic intellectual traditions without fossilizing them, and presents a vision of its relationship to the hierarchy that is respectful, independent, faithful, and dynamic. Catholic Higher Education Melanie Morey, John Piderit, 2010-05-28 Today Catholic colleges and universities are dealing with critical questions about what constitutes Catholic collegiate identity. Based on their research, Morey and Piderit describe the present situation and offer concrete suggestions for enhancing Catholic identity, culture, and mission at all Catholic colleges and universities. The authors define the critical issues and analyze and address them by using the rich construct of culture, particularly organizational culture, and they provide four different models of how Catholic colleges and universities can operate and successfully compete as religiously distinctive institutions in the higher education market. Research in Higher Education Annie Reynolds, Elise Henrietta Martens, Ella Burgess Ratcliffe, Francis Washington Kirkham, Jessie M. Parker, Mina M. Langvick, Regional Conference on Home-Making Education, Robert Weiss Kunzig, 1931 Adapting to America William P. Leahy, 1991 Catholic Higher Education in the 1960s Anthony J. Dosen, 2009-10-01 Catholic Higher Education in the 1960s is a series of cases that describes and analyzes the transitions made by representative Catholic institutions in their attempts to update their governance structures and maintain their Catholic identity in the midst of the post-Vatican II era. This book will be of interest to historians of education and Catholic education to administrators and faculty in Catholic schools and in other religious-based institutions that seek to understand the dynamic of balancing their religious identity with their attempts at reading the signs of the times.

Research in Education ,1974 The Catholic University of America C. Joseph Nuesse,1990 The university has been known for the excellence of its teaching its immense influence on American Catholic education and the intensity and liveliness of its intramural theological debates reflecting the stresses of the modern world on the church This informative history by an emeritus professor of sociology traces the university s development omitting no controversy of relevance to current issues Washington Post Book World History and Contemporary Issues Charles E. Curran,2016-10-06 This is a collection of the most important writings of Charles E Curran from the 1980s and 1990s He examines the history of moral theology in general the development of Catholic medical ethics the role of the laity in the thought of John Courtney Murray and the evolution of Catholic moral theology from the end of World War II to the close of the 20th century The volume also includes a selection of his writings on fertility control homosexuality public policy gay rights academic freedom and Catholic higher education
