MacLennan,2014-03-31 Although little remains of Hawai i s plantation economy the sugar industry s past dominance has created the Hawai i we see today Many of the most pressing and controversial issues urban and resort development water rights expansion of suburbs into agriculturally rich lands pollution from herbicides invasive species in native forests an unsustainable economy can be tied to Hawai i s industrial sugar history Sovereign Sugar unravels the tangled relationship between the sugar industry and Hawai i s cultural and natural landscapes It is the first work to fully examine the complex tapestry of socioeconomic political and environmental forces that shaped sugar's role in Hawai'i. While early Polynesian and European influences on island ecosystems started the process of biological change, plantation agriculture with its voracious need for land and water profoundly altered Hawai'i's landscape. MacLennan focuses on the rise of industrial and political power among the sugar planter elite and its political ecological consequences. The book opens in the 1840s when the Hawaiian Islands were under the influence of American missionaries. Changes in property rights and the move toward Western governance along with the demands of a growing industrial economy pressed upon the new Hawaiian nation and its forests and water resources. Subsequent chapters trace island ecosystems, plantation communities and natural resource policies through time. By the 1930s the sugar economy engulfed both human and environmental landscapes. The author argues that sugar manufacture has not only significantly transformed Hawai'i but its legacy provides lessons for future outcomes.

Overseas Shinto Shrines Karli Shimizu, 2022-10-06 Through extensive use of primary resources and fieldwork, this detailed study examines overseas Shinto shrines and their complex role in the colonization and modernization of newly Japanese lands and subjects. Shinto shrines became one of the most visible symbols of Japanese imperialism in the early 20th century. From 1868 to 1945, shrines were constructed by both the government and Japanese migrants across the Asia Pacific region, from Sakhalin to Taiwan and from China to the Americas. Drawing on theories about the constructed nature of the modern categories of religion and the secular, this book argues that modern Shinto shrines were largely conceived and treated as secular sites within a newly invented Japanese secularism and that they played an important role in communicating changed conceptions of space, time and ethics in imperial subjects. Providing an example of the invention of a non-Western secularity, this book contributes to our understanding of the relationship between religion, secularism and the construction of the modern state.

Handbook of Asian Education Yong Zhao, Jing Lei, Guofang Li, Ming Fang He, Kaori Okano, Nagwa Megahed, David Gamage, Hema Ramanathan, 2010-11-30 Comprehensive and authoritative, this Handbook provides a nuanced description and analysis of educational systems, practices and policies in Asian countries and explains and interprets these practices from cultural, social, historical and economic perspectives. Using a culture-based framework, the volume is organized in five sections, each devoted to educational practices in one civilization in Asia: Sinic, Japanese, Islamic, Buddhist and Hindu. Culture and culture identities essentially are civilization identities; the major differences among civilizations are rooted in their different cultures. This framework offers a novel approach to capturing the essence of the diverse educational systems and practices in Asia. Uniquely combining description and interpretation of educational practices in Asia, this Handbook is a must-have resource for education researchers and graduate students in international and comparative education, globalization and education, multicultural education, sociocultural foundations of education and Asian studies, and for educational administrators and education policy makers.
